Woolworth's Heiress, No Longer U.S. Citizen May Escape Big Taxes

Reason for Barbara's Renunciation Rooted in "Dual Nationality," Since She is by Marriage a Danish Subject.

NOW AT SEA

Countess on Way to London—Angry Over Remarks of Newspapers.

Copenhagen, Dec. 17 (AP)—Tax experts said today decision by the Countess Haugwitz-Reventlow to give up American citizenship and keep that of her Danish husband would not make her liable to income tax here unless she lived in Denmark three months each year or transferred her fortune here. A number of wealthy Danes live abroad most of the year.

New York, Dec. 17 (AP).—Renunciation of American citizenship by the Countess Hangwitz von Reventlow, heiress to the Woolworth 5-and-10 millions, set tax authorities to wondering today whether she will escape heavy taxation in this country.

Morris Greenbaum, director of the labor audit bureau and a certified accountant, said "the treasury stands to lose millions of dollars," pointing out that, unlike other nations, the United States places no restrictions on export of American capital.

Persons familiar with Danish law observed that although taxes in Denmark are generally higher than in this country, the former Barbara Hutton has been automatically a Danish subject since her second marriage and had little opportunity of escaping taxation there. They said the inheritance of her 22-months-old son, Lance, could have been complicated under her duel citizenship.

Now in her second day at sea returning to her husband and child in London, the 27-year-old, auburn-haired countess disclosed through attorneys the secret of her one-day visit here.

Renounces United States.

She appeared before a federal court judge for a few moments Wednesday to renounce "absolutely and entirely" her allegiance to the land of her birth because, a statement by her lawyers said, "Her dual nationality has resulted in various legal complications affecting her status as well as that of her child, and she has finally felt obliged, as in the case of a number of other American women similarly situated, to forego her United States citizenship in order to alleviate this anolomous and unsatisfactory situation."

And so this slender woman, reputed to have inherited approximately $40,000,000, joined a long list of other prominent Americans who transfer their allegiance to other nations, including William Waldorf Astor, the Duchess of Windsor, Henry James, the novelist, Adele Astaire, the dancing actress, and Gordon Selfridge, London department store magnate.

Angry at Criticism.

A possible clue to the reason underlying the countess' action was the recent statement of James W. Gerard, former ambassador to Germany, who dined with her in London last summer, that she might live abroad permanently to escape American criticism and publicity.

After making a $5,000 contribution to a New York Christmas charity three years ago, she angrily accused a newspaper columnist of having made "nasty remarks" in a direct appeal which led to her gift.

"It's the last time I'm going to be trapped that way," she said. "I found out it was a charity to which I already had been giving larger amounts every year anonymously."

In contrast was her reaction to a skit on New York and London stages poking fun at her marriage to the Georgian Prince Alexis Mdivani, now dead. The show, "As Thousands Cheer" here, was entitled "Stop Press" in London. Two songs by an impersonator of the former princess were "The Nickels and Dimes I've Got Bring Me an Awful Lot" and "Eeney, Meeney, Miney Mo, Catcha Prince by the Toe."

Skit Censored.

Finally the Lord Chamberlain in London censored the skit and prohibited the impersonation, although the countess denied she had protested and said she was sorry for the trouble caused to the producer Clifford Whitley, a friend.

In the two years of her marriage to Mdivani, they lived mainly on her fortune and they were separated for long periods. In the spring of 1935, she joined him in Egypt after he had been in India alone playing polo and they decided on a divorce settlement. She married Count Haugwitz May 12, 1935, in Reno, Nev., immediately after obtaining the divorce. Mdivani was killed in a motor accident in Spain in August, 1936.

Work Progresses on New School

Freeman Photos

The Freeman cameraman recently visited the site of the new central school to be constructed in the rear of the Kingston High School, and obtained some shots of the progress being made by the W. W. Kingston Company of Poughkeepsie, general contractor for the new school. The photos show that as fast as the rock and earth is excavated for the foundations of the school that it is being used in building the roads leading into the school grounds. The road shown under construction is the one leading from Andrew street into the school grounds. There will also be a road in to the school from West O'Reilly street.

Japan Potential Foe Of U. S. Says Duffield In Speech to Kiwanis

Atlantic and Pacific Oceans are United States' Best Friends Says Duffield

"Japan is the one potential enemy of the United States in the world today," declared J. W. Duffield of the speakers' bureau of the New York Times in a masterly address on international affairs before members of the Kiwanis Club at the Governor Clinton Hotel Thursday noon.

At a board meeting of the club directly after the luncheon, Mr. Duffield, who has appeared before Kiwanis for four successive years, was elected to honorary membership in the club, in appreciation for many visits here.

The speaker, in opening his remarks, suggested that the masses of no nation wanted war, yet under their respective governments, the countries of Europe and Asia, "are preparing for conflicts and making armed camps of countries." He scanned Europe rapidly, comparing the activities of fascist and socialist and communist nations, their armed strength and the facilities of their war machines. "Only in one spot in Europe is there actually war," he continued, "but this spot, Spain, may well set off the spark that will explode the powder keg". Recalling in history that America owed Spain a debt, because "the Spanish crown jewels were sold to lead to the discovery of America," Mr. Duffield traced Spain's decline as a top-ranking nation to its present difficulties, and remarked that "if Spain alone was involved in this war, we would need feel no concern."

Trouble in Alignments

However the speaker pointed out that aligned with the France or rebel government were the fascist nations of Europe, Italy and Germany, and on the other side the loyalist or at present legal government was supported by socialistic France and communistic Russia, and that all of these countries were supplying arms or men, and in some cases both, to the sides of their choice.

"A brawl between two drunken sailors, a misplaced shell, an insult to a flag, or some other such occurrence, may well be the start of another European war," emphasized Mr. Duffield.

Mr. Duffield then took his audience eastward across Europe to Asia, "where the reaction of the oriental mind is unpredictable, where in Japan a man insulted will commit suicide, instead of assaulting the insulter; in China where people shake hands with

New Police Signal System to Replace Present One Feb. 1

A new police signal system is to be installed to replace the present system which was installed by the Gamewell Company and placed in operation on May 15, 1915. That was decided by the Board of Police Commissioners at the regular monthly meeting held at the city hall Thursday evening when the board authorized the mayor to sign a contract with the New York Telephone Company, which has agreed to install a new system for which the city will pay a rental of $102.38 per month.

A representative of the telephone company met with the police board last night and discussed the proposition. The new system will consist of 21 boxes, located at practically the same points as the present 21 boxes in the city. The rental to be paid by the city also takes care of the maintenance of the new system.

The action taken by the board in replacing the old system with the new was due to the fact that the old system has been outworn, and it would cost approximately $12,000 to make necessary repairs.

It is planned to have the new system in operation about February 1.

The present police signal system has 5½ miles of underground lead cable and 14 miles of aerial. It is this lead cable that requires replacing. The present system of

$9.78 a Thousand Is City's Share of County Tax Rate

Kingston's share of the Ulster county tax is $224,942.13, which amount must be included in the city's budget for 1938 which is now being drafted. In other words Kingston's taxpayers will have to pay $9.78 for each thousand valuation of their property as their share of the county tax, it was learned at the city hall today.

Mayor C. J. Heiselman, who has been working until midnight several nights a week preparing the budget, stated today that while progress was being made the budget was far from ready. He said he planned to hold a public hearing on the proposed budget during Christmas week.

The mayor said that in checking up the various boards and departments it has been found that practically every department and board will close this year with a surplus. This, he said, would make the fourth consecutive year that the city government had lived within its budget and had closed the year with a surplus.

This year the surplus will be used to purchase the new fire truck which replaces the one wrecked when in collision with a train on the Broadway crossing last May. The new truck, which will be delivered here some time in January, costs $12,900.

Just what the tax rate for 1938 will be is not known until the budget is finally completed. It will likely be several days yet before the work on the budget is completed. Each board and department is submitting to the mayor an estimate of the amount it will need to function next year, and the mayor is carefully going over each asked for appropriation before including it in the budget.

Chinese Morale Broke Sunday Afternoon as Troops Staged Rout

Slow Ordered Retreat Turned Into Stampede and Soldiers Ran Screaming, Fought to Get Out of City.

TOKYO'S STAND

Tokyo May Not Give Formal Acknowledgment of U. S. Note.

Shanghai, Dec. 17 (AP)—How Japanese warplanes machine-gunned the small boats carrying wounded men ashore from the bombed United States gunboat Panay—causing more wounds—was told in detail tonight by survivors of the disastrous air attack.

They confirmed earlier reports—denied by the Japanese—that such machine gun fire harassed survivors, many already suffering from serious wounds incurred aboard the stricken Panay, as they tried to reach safety ashore last Sunday afternoon.

In addition, survivors reaching here aboard the United States gunboat Oahu said Japanese army detachments in launches on the Yangtze and along the river bank fired gun bursts at the Panay before she sank.

The river party also boarded the Panay, after her crew and civilian passengers abandoned ship, for a hurried inspection just before she went under the river's muddy waters.

Oahu at Shanghai

With flags fluttering at half mast the little United States gunboat Oahu arrived at Shanghai tonight bearing the dead, wounded and rescued survivors of her sister ship Panay.

Two Japanese destroyers, the Otori and Kasasagi, and the British gunboat Ladybird convoyed the United States vessel as she steamed alongside the flagship Augusta, ending her 220-mile trip down the Yangtze.

On board were the bodies of storekeeper Charles L. Ensminger of the Panay; Capt. C. H. Carlson of the Standard Oil vessel Meian; Sandro Sandri, Italian newspaperman, and the Chinese quartermaster of one of the three oil company craft destroyed in the Japanese attack Sunday.

The Oahu also carried some 60 survivors, 15 of them wounded.

The United States government's concern over belated information that Japanese boats had machine-gunned the Panay before she went down with her flags flying was emphasized when a naval court of inquiry boarded the Oahu down the Whangpoo at Pootung.

By C. YATES McDANIEL

Aboard the Destroyer Tsuga, Dec. 17 (AP).—The morale of Chinese armies defending Nanking broke suddenly Sunday afternoon.

What had been planned as a slow, ordered retreat turned into a wild rout. Nanking had a night of terror. Thousands of Chinese soldiers fought to escape from the city by a single gate.

And on Monday the rising sun flag of Japan was raised over the city's walls.

Retreating troops were entering Nanking in apparently good order and good spirits. Suddenly, Sunday afternoon, a brigade which had been hammered throughout the day broke from its position and dashed into the city.

The soldiers ran past the American embassy, scattering crowds of civilians before them, and shouting: "The Japanese are within the city. We are surrounded."

The first rout was stopped a hundred yards past the embassy by military police who opened fire

All But One In Jail

Baltimore, Dec. 17 (AP)—All but one of fourteen seamen convicted of mutiny aboard the government owned freighter, Algic, remained in jail today while their counsel prepared a petition for a new trial.

A federal court jury decided yesterday the men were guilty of mutiny in holding a sit-down strike on the ship at Montevideo, Uruguay, September 10. The seamen were convicted under a 1790 statute of conspiring and attempted to revolt. Judge W. Calvin Chestnut withheld sentence until Monday.

Grim "Game of Cards"

Morristown, Pa., Dec 17 (AP)—A grim "game of cards" with a pack of rogue's gallery portraits gave police an ace today in their quest for the slayer of Mrs. Wilma Carpenter, 38, attractive widow.

Miss Mary Griffin, 22, beauty shop operator who accused the killer of attempting to assault her while the widow's body lay in a bedroom in the Carpenter home Monday, shuffled through several score portraits last night, stared fixedly at one, and screamed:

"That's the man who killed Wilma".

It was a picture, State Trooper James Woodring said, of Wendell Forrest Bowers, 19, of Ambler, Pa., paroled from the state reformatory at Huntingdon, Pa., 10 days before the crime.

District Attorney Frederick B. Smillie immediately swore out a warrant for the arrest of Bowers on a charge of murder.

N.Y.C. Code Satisfies Two Local Legislators; Other Objections Cause Delay

Wicks and Conway Obtain Amendment to Clear Up Taxation of Reservoir Property of Metropolis.

ADJOURN TO DEC. 22

Legislature Meets Next Week to Decide Final Course on Codification of Laws.

Albany, N. Y., Dec. 17 (AP)—The special session of New York Legislature called to consider a proposed New York city administrative code adjourned today until Thursday, December 23, without acting on the measure.

Leaders joined in a statement saying that vigorous protest from both Republican and Democratic legislators to the original draft made it advisable to give them further time to study the 3,500 page document and at the same time permit the drafting of numerous amendments.

Democratic Senate Leader John J. Dunnigan and Republican Assembly Speaker Oswald D. Heck predicted agreement on the measure during the adjournment period, and prompt passage next Thursday.

Previously, leaders had hoped to have an amended bill ready for a vote today. Objections forced an overnight recess yesterday of what was to have been a one-day session.

In an effort to avoid further delay when the legislature reconvenes, Dunnigan called a meeting of the senate city affairs committee for next Tuesday in New York city to smooth out any additional objections that may arise.

No Attempt To Block Bill

"I want it thoroughly understood," Dunnigan said, "that this delay until next week constitutes no attempt on the part of any one to block passage of this bill."

In an unsuccessful effort to obtain immediate passage, amendments were prepared, including a so-called "saving" clause, which stated that none of the matter included in the bill codifying New York city laws and regulations is intended to revise statutes under the old charter.

One of the principal objections to the original proposal was Republican Senator Arthur H. Wicks, Ulster county.

Wicks and Republican Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, both from Ulster county, insisted upon a change in a clause in the proposed code which they said would have exempted a New York city water supply source from taxation in their county.

Agrees to Amendment

Reuben A. Lazarus, counsel for the board of statutory consolidation which drafted the code, immediately agreed to this amendment along with several others. He worked with Dunnigan in making the changes.

In addition to Wicks and Conway, objections were voiced to the original bill by Tammany's representatives and other individuals who contended the measure should not be enacted until lawmakers had time for proper study of the 3,500 page bill.

The overnight recess, forcing lawmakers to seek hotel rooms for the night instead of transportation back home, brought loud protests from some lawmakers who had planned to remain only a day.

Governor Lehman, in calling the session at request of New York City Mayor Fiorello La Guardia, explained the mayor had assurance from legislative leaders that the proposed code would receive speedy approval.

Will Vote For Bill

After an announcement today that the New York State Legislature would adjourn until next Thursday to permit members to perfect amendments to the New York City Code Bill, Assemblyman J. Edward Conway and Senator Arthur H. Wicks of Kingston said they would vote for the bill because the requirements demanded by them had been met.

The various legislators whose districts are affected by the New York City Code Bill asked for the adjournment in order that they might properly frame the amendments they want to propose and insert them in the bill. Ulster county's representatives, Senator Wicks and Assemblyman Conway refused to vote for the code bill until New York city authorities agreed to refrain from extending the list of tax exempt properties in this county.

Having been assured that the list will not be extended, and that New York city will pay its share of taxes on property owned by it in Ulster, Wicks and Conway will go along in favor of the bill when it comes up for a vote.

Traffic Education

Officer William J. Leonard, one of the members of the special traffic squad assigned for duty this week in the courtesy drive inaugurated by the Kingston police department, is seen in the above picture talking with a driver of a car who is double parked. The idea back of the special traffic detail of police was to interview all auto drivers found violating the traffic laws, but they have been instructed not to make arrests except where there are deliberate violations of the law. It is expected that the courtesy drive will end this week, and commencing next week the police will be instructed to see to it that the new traffic code provisions are enforced.

Ace Racket Buster Gets Convictions In Fur Terrorism

New York, Dec. 17 (AP) John Harlan Amen, acknowledged ace "racket buster" of the Federal government has registered another triumph with the conviction of a Federal court jury of three union organizations and six individuals on charges of terrorizing the $75,000,000-a-year fancy fur dressing industry.

The verdict last night raised his total of convictions in two years of campaigning under the Sherman Anti-Trust Act to 195. Amen, a special assistant to the U. S. attorney general, said the conviction of the unions was the first since the act became effective in 1890.

After 11 hours deliberation the jury convicted the International Fur Workers Union of the United States and Canada and two union locals, two former presidents and three organizers, and Nat Rosse, general manager of the Dressers Factory Corporation which, the government charged, was the engineering unit of the racket.

The unions, Rosse and Morris Kaufman, former international president, were convicted without recommendation. Clemency was recommended for Pietro Lucchi, former international president, and Morris Ross, Philip Silberstein and Isaac Hertzberg, organizers.

Will Be Sentenced January 10.

All the convicted defendants, including the corporation and 52 individuals, mostly fur dressermembers of the corporation, who pleaded guilty at the opening of the trial five weeks ago, will be sentenced January 10.

Two defendants, William Cohen and Joseph Marmell, accused as "strong arm" men of the racket, were acquitted. Judge John C. Knox, in discharging them, said, "I am fully convinced of your guilt but will abide by the jury's decision."

The trial unfolded a story of fur dealers, dressers, manufacturers, and their families terrorized by arson, acid throwing, stench bombing, explosions and assaults to force them into working with the Factor Corporation. The government charged that the corporation was founded by the fugitives Louis (Lepke) Buchalter and Jacob (Gurrah) Shapiro to stifle competition and boost prices and union wages.

Buchalter and Shapiro had encountered Amen in 1936 when he prosecuted them on charges of terrorizing the $10,000,000 rabbit fur industry. Both were convicted but the verdict against Buchalter was reversed last March. He and Shapiro now are fugitives from an indictment charging racketeering in the garment industry, obtained by another famous foe of the racket, Special Prosecutor Thomas E. Dewey.

Amen's achievements include 82 convictions in crushing the fresh fish racket, 27 in breaking the salt-water fish racket; and smashing the artichoke and the rabbit fur rackets.

4 Persons Wounded.

Chicago, Dec. 17 (AP).—Four persons—two detectives and two passersby—were wounded last night during a gun battle between police and two unidentified men which sent scores of Christmas shoppers to cover. The two men opened fire without warning when Detective Patrick Griffin, 45, and Fred Crowley, 43, stepped up to their parked car to question them.

Promise to Ulster Keynote of Action On New York Code

Albany, Dec. 17 (Special)—Speedy action on the New York city administrative code bill, introduced in the State Senate Thursday night by Senator John J. Dunnigan, Democratic majority leader of the Upper House, hinges today upon fulfillment of a promise made to Ulster county's legislators, that the definition of the word "aqueduct" in the bill will be changed or deleted to prevent any extension of the list of tax-exempt properties of the city in Ulster and several other counties.

The measure, as offered last night by Senator Dunnigan, does not contain the amendments promised by Reuben Lazarus, assistant corporation counsel of New York city and representative of Mayor LaGuardia, but it is understood that as soon as the business of the Senate gets under way today, the changes will be ready to be submitted by Introducer of the bill. The amendments, demanded by Senator Arthur H. Wicks, and Assemblyman J. Edward Conway, Republicans of Kingston, would eliminate all possibility of any widening of the scope of tax-exempt property of New York city included under the heading of "aqueduct".

Wicks' Objections

Immediately following on introduction of the measure Thursday night, Senator Dunnigan moved to advance the bill to the order of final passage, without the customary reference to committee, but because of objections voiced by Senator Wicks, who will not sanction the bill until the amendments are made, it was necessary to refer the measure to the committee on the affairs of the city of New York for further consideration. That committee, however, is expected to meet today and report out the measure, making it eligible for immediate consideration.

In the meantime, the Assembly will mark time, until the Senate has debated upon and passed the measure, and sent it over to the Lower House for consideration. Both houses are scheduled to meet at 11 a. m. today, but a recess will probably be taken in the

Christmas Shopping is Greater Than Last Year

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—As shoppers swarmed into stores to buy Christmas gifts and winter merchandise, retail trade this week jumped 4 to 10 per cent above last week for the country as a whole, and ran 3 to 12 per cent above last year, Dun & Bradstreet reported today.

"Earlier lag in the buying of Christmas and seasonable merchandise was replaced by a concerted forward lunge at most leading centers of distribution," said the credit agency.

"Christmas shopping superseded other consumer buying in retail stores this week, which pushed sales on some days to a new high for the period. Because of the recent shift to moderately-priced items, gains over last year's comparatives frequently were restricted."

Bold Bandit.

Philadelphia—The bandit jammed a pistol into Louis Blatt's ribs in a clothing store but, instead of cringing, Blatt grabbed the weapon.

The bandit fled, Blatt at his heels.

A shout to halt was ignored and Blatt pulled the trigger.

A spray of water splashed his face. The "gun" was a water pistol.

Charity.

Columbus, O.—Albert Donahue was pretty peeved when he reported to police that his automobile had been stolen from his garage.

He felt much better when he came back to tell that the car had been recovered, and not just because he had his car again, either.

The thief had "paid" for the use of the car by filling the gasoline tank.

One-Man Boycott.

San Bernardino, Calif.—"Let's see that tray," a customer asked a waiter in a restaurant here.

"Hm—made in Japan," he said when the waiter obliged—and smashed it. "How much did it cost?"

"Fifty cents," replied the astounded waiter.

"Here," said the man, as he continued his meal. "It was well worth it."

Challenge Direct.

White Sulphur Springs, Mont.—"Twenty-five dollars reward for information leading to the arrest and conviction * * * or personal mauling by Joe Boyer, of anyone guilty of poisoning dogs." So runs an advertisement in the Meagher County News.

Boyer, whose dog was poisoned recently, has vowed to "lick the dirty coward" who did it.

Pressing Demands.

Bloomfield, Neb.—Things came to a pretty pass on a paving project here.

A group of men issued an ultimatum to the mayor, threatening to halt work on the project unless given employment.

Then they commandeered a tractor and started to work without benefit of authority.

Police seized the tractor and put it in storage.

And the mayor wired Washington to learn what to do about the situation.

Joffre Practices His Own Preaching And Cooks Most Dishes With Olive Oil

This is one of a series of articles in which famous chefs reveal the secrets and menus which have given their cookery world-wide renown.

(By The AP Feature Service)

Everyone should consume more olive oil, says Antonio Joffre, chef at El Chico, Spanish restaurant in New York's Greenwich Village.

And Chef Joffre does his best to make the public practice what he preaches for he uses olive oil in nearly all of his dishes. In cookery, it is the cream and butter and lard of Spain.

"If everybody eat more olive oil — not so much stomach trouble," he shrugs. "Olive oil pure vegetable. Made of green olives, pressed, dropped, yes?"

Senor Joffre has been preparing Spanish food for Americans for the last quarter of a century. A native of Majorca, Spanish-owned island in the Mediterranean, he began his career in Barcelona. From there he went to Marseille, France.

"See when you learn over there," he explains, "you start from bottom. I have diploma. You don't do that in this country, but in others it is so."

No Butter, Please!

What is his favorite dish?

"I was born cook," he says. "No matter what is it—that's my favorite dish."

Antonio Joffre

"Over there," he points, "she is filet mignon. We call it Filet Mignon a-la Mallorquina."

You turn around to discover a broiled filet of tenderloin steak being removed to the serving dish. Around it go broiled tomatoes, broiled green peppers, broiled fresh mushrooms, broiled pimientos. Everything is seasoned with salt and pepper, finished off with hot olive oil, and garnished with watercress.

How about adding a square of butter?

"No, No!" He shakes his head gravely. "You see the smell olive oil give you. It gives you a nice-a smell."

One of the favorite dishes at El Chico is Arroz con Pollo. (It means "Rice with Chicken.")

A Real Spanish Dish

To make it, put two ounces of olive oil and a quarter of a three-pound chicken in a casserole to saute for three minutes. Add a bit of cut garlic, one medium-sized onion chopped, and a half of a green pepper, also chopped.

Let this combination cook for two minutes. Add one fresh tomato, peeled and cut small. Cook for two more minutes. Then add a tiny bit of red pepper, half a cup of rice, one cup of chicken broth, and a pinch of saffron. Put in a hot oven and cook for 17 minutes. Remove from the oven and keep hot over a low flame while you decorate the top with fresh cooked green peas, sliced red peppers and a little chopped parsley. Cover with a lid and place the casserole on the table.

Shrimps, lobster, little clams and snails may be used in place of the chicken—if you prefer variety.

Broaca Gives Trial Testimonial

Barnstable, Mass., Dec. 17 (AP)—John J. Broaca's unexpected announcement from the stand that he was willing to return and make a home for his wife and four-month-old son gave a new twist today to Mrs. Broaca's suit for divorce from the suspended New York Yankee's baseball pitcher.

Broaca was responsible for a second surprise development, testimony that he and his atractive brunette wife had lived together since she filed her divorce suit September 30. Mrs. Broaca the former Cordelia Ireland of Orleans, Mass., has testified they had separated May 30.

The former Yale athlete denied he had been cruel and abusive, or that he had accused his wife of dishonestly arranging to receive $1,000 in world series money from the Yankees "I told her to keep it," he testified.

Broaca said he doubted he could return to baseball pitching next spring, explaining an arm ailment had affected his pitching.

Theodore Cole, 23, Stroud, Okla., with Ralph Roe, 29, disappeared from Alcatraz, supposedly escape-proof island penitentiary in San Fraancisco harbor Authorities searched fog-bound island and shore escape routes. They doubted the pair could swim a mile to shore through rough seas and a swift tide.

Mechanical Monster.

Salt Lake City, Dec. 17 (AP).—A. B. Jenkins, holder of most major distance auto speed records, today announced plans for a mechanical monster with which he hopes to smash the world land mark of 311 M. P. H in 1938.

The rugged Utahan said his new racer will be as radically built as "Thunderbolt," in which Capt. George E. T. Eyston, retired British army officer, recently set the 311 mark for the measured mile on Bonneville Salt Flats, 120 miles west of here.

"Englishmen have had an option on that record too long," Jenkins declared. "It's time an American took a swing at it."

Rattles, rubber dolls, and other toys for children who still have a tendency to put things in their mouths are nearly all made of materials that can be kept sanitary and safe.

UTOPIAN IDEA.

While we're theorizing about political and governmental evils, how about this batch of suggestions, written seriously by a citizen to a newspaper, with special reference to local government?

He says.

Big business requires efficient management to be successful. It acquires the best executives available and keeps them. It doesn't change executives every two or four years.

This country is abundantly supplied with men and women recognized for their ability and efficiency. Why shouldn't our newspapers and civic organizations such as our Chamber of Commerce, Bar Association, Citizens League, Real Estate Board, and so on, recommend a list of eligible prospects for mayor, directors of law, utilities, finance, public service, and so on, to be drafted for service and elected for life on a non-partisan ballot?

These directors should appoint assistants to carry out their policies. The clerical force would be taken from civil service lists. Under this system the spoils system would be abolished, duplicated services would be abandoned, business acumen would prevail, insuring efficiency, economy and lower taxes.

The prospects are appealing, in some ways, but appalling in others. Wouldn't it be the fine little Fascist system? And how about extending it to the state and federal governments, and having efficient people "elected for life" running everything? A democracy is supposed to prefer liberty even to efficiency, and most of us still think it's worth the cost. We want businesslike methods, of course, in our public affairs; but are we sure that things would be so much better if everything was run by "business men" with secure tenure?

Party politics is a price we pay for political freedom. Even "mere politicians" often perform useful public service, through their understanding of human nature and human values.

BLUNDERING CENSORSHIP

After that Mickey Mouse comic strip was banned in Yugoslavia the other day the government ordered out of the country an American newspaper man who had cabled the story to his paper. When he reached Vienna the correspondent told the rest of the story.

The censor stopped the Mickey Mouse comic just as it reached a point where a regent uncle of a minor king in an imaginary country was conspiring against the king. Yugoslavs, along with the rest of the world, jumped to the conclusion that the make-believe plot in the comic must somehow parallel something that was actually taking place in Yugoslavia, where a 13-year-old boy is king while his cousin heads the group of regents now ruling.

This conclusion, says the correspondent, is quite unjust to King Peter's Cousin Paul. The censors were not concerned about that phase of the story, but the coming developments in it. The next cartoons in the series dealt with over-taxation and a royal treasury as bare as Mother Hubbard's cupboard, cleaned out by the imaginary prime minister of Mickey Mouse's imaginary realm. The political opposition has lately been charging the government with corruption. The censor feared the comic cartoons would create distrust of the real prime minister. Instead of preventing that distrust, the censor has intensified it and stirred up a lot of other public suspicions of the ruling group, royalty and commoners alike. Censorship is like that.

A PRACTICE ELECTION.

That "first, secret direct election" in the history of Russia went off very pleasantly on December 12. There was no Literary Digest poll in advance, but even without it, the election might have been guessed easily beforehand. There were no surprises in any section of the great sprawling U. S. S. R. Although the Russian people elected the required 1,143 members of their legislature, it all turned out to be just a big happy endorsement of Josef Stalin.

Before Americans feel too sorry for the Russians, whose much-heralded democracy doesn't look very democratic at this distance, let us remember that this is merely a beginning. With no traditions of representative government and no free, secret ballots in their experience, this rather routine election may well have seemed important and exciting. And there is this possibility. The Russians, having had a weak sample of the universal franchise, may find out what it's all about and demand the real thing one of these days.

WORLD RAW MATERIALS.

The League of Nations Economic Committee, wrestling with the problem of distributing raw materials, ended its forty-seventh session with these suggestions:

That raw materials should be exported more freely and made available for all countries alike; that foreigners should be as free as nationals in developing natural resources anywhere; that international regulations should have full publicity and give consumers a fair deal.

It sounds fine, but we do not foresee the plan's immediate adoption. The League has learned before now that it can lead the nations to a plan but it can't make them adopt it or live up to it.

That Body of Yours

By James W. Barton, M.D.

(Registered in accordance with the Copyright Act)

CHRONIC ARTHRITIS.

The infected teeth and tonsils have been removed, the sinuses are in normal condition, the gall bladder has been drained, and yet the patient still suffers with rheumatic pains and may believe that there is no hope for any relief or improvement.

As mentined before, the fact, that whatever was causing the rheumatism—teeth, tonsils—has been removed means only that no more poison can be manufactured by that particular part of the body, but some of that poison may still be in gall bladder, large intestine or elsewhere and some of it is carried by the blood to the already affected joints or soft tissues and so cause symptoms. Besides, the damage already done to the joint by the infection from the teeth and tonsils may be permanent, and even surgery or other treatment cannot give satisfactory results.

Dr. Bernard Wyatt, Tuscon, Arizona, in Nebraska State Medical Journal states that the most important of all in the treatment of arthritis (rheumatism) is to explain the "long time" required for cure, otherwise the patient will become discouraged and stop treatment before the physician has had fair chance to carry it out.

Some of Dr. Wyatt's suggestions are:

Removal of all infection present—teeth, tonsils, gall bladder.

Constipation must be corrected by a bulky fruit and vegetable diet (low in starch—bread, sugar, potatoes), and the use of mild laxatives, enemas, and, at the beginning of the treatment, colonic irrigations (high enemas).

Rest. It is harmful to keep on working a painful joint, but while in a warm bath, gentle exercise can be carried on without pain as the warm water acts as an anaesthetic and the wider open blood vessels carry away waste products manufactured by the exercise.

The patient should not be allowed to slump in any position he likes; wrists and knees should be kept straight by splints and casts worn at night.

Heat in various forms, vaccines, blood transfusions, all have a place in the treatment. And last, but not least, the patient should be encouraged to continue the treatment faithfully. He must be kept hopeful of results.

The Common Cold.

Are you bothered with colds three or four times a year. Have you ever stopped to consider the consequences? Send for Dr. Barton's illuminating booklet, THE COMMON COLD, the ailment that receives so little attention yet may be as dangerous as being attacked by a hungry lion. Ask for booklet No. 104, enclosing ten cents for each copy to cover cost of service and handling. Send your request to The Bell Library, in cargo of The Kingston Daily Freeman, 247 West 43rd Street, New York, N. Y.

DARE TO DREAM

BY ALICE MARIE DODGE

The Characters

Nelda, a beautiful, dark-eyed, dark-haired girl, is forced to sacrifice her personal ambitions, and run a lettuce farm.

Bill, a tanned, young lettuce farmer with blue eyes, helps Nelda plant.

Reck, blond guy and wealthy, makes love to Nelda.

Mrs. Reckless. Reck's cold and arrogant mother warns Nelda that Reck is not for her.

Jack, Nelda's younger brother, is in medical school.

Chapter 10

Christmas

NELDA was tugging at the necklace and flushing more with annoyance than embarrassment.

"Just because you gave me this, you needn't think—"

Reck took her hands away from the clasp.

"Be reasonable, Nelda!" His impetuous eyes, looking at her in accusation, somehow disarmed her. "I'm not such a bad guy, am I?" His arm went about her shoulder and she smelled the odor of shaving soap, fine linen and Scotch tweed.

"No-o, you're not so bad."

"Well, stop acting as if I'd stolen the baby's candy. You've been kissed before, haven't you?"

The words fell into a pool of silence. She had occasionally submitted to a kiss, but with the complete security of indifference. This situation was not the same. But she couldn't find words to tell him all that was involved. There was his mother's objection to her. There was her poverty compared to his affluence.

"You're awfully sweet, Nelda." His arm tightened about her shoulder. There was an ardor in his eyes and his voice flowed toward her in soft, caressing syllables.

His tenderness was pleasant to her sore spirit and made a warmth surge through her veins. He was so good-looking, so friendly, so cheerful, so amusing that it was always a delight to be with him. In that moment it came to her that she liked him better than any man she knew.

Next morning Jack seemed to have forgotten his bitterness. He came to the breakfast table with light-footed step and, with the resilience of youth, entered into the plans the family was making for Christmas.

Those plans, Nelda thought, were not one third as elaborate as those they'd made in the old days, yet she had to admit there was a certain exhilaration about them that the Christmases in the city had lacked. She and Jack cut down their own tree, gathered pungent pine boughs and red berries in the mountains. It was really fun to pop corn and to make candy. In the city there hadn't been time to do such things.

Jack even went so far as to say over the pine boughs he was forming into a wreath, "Maybe I'll have an M. D. after my name yet."

'Are You Engaged?'

NELDA grew hopeful, too. Perhaps she could go back to school next fall. What was the loss of one term? She was young and she'd work all the harder when she returned to her classes.

Reck dashed in for a few minutes the day before Christmas with a large box of glazed fruit.

"I have the most gorgeous plans for New Year's Eve," he announced. "I'm going to take you to the Rio Del Mar for supper and dancing."

"Take me!" Nelda exclaimed, thinking he had highhanded ways. Yet they were charming, dashing ways.

"I've got a card," he went on easily. "Belong to that club."

Jack whistled.

"Some class to you!" Laura observed, looking over her spectacles at Reck with respect.

Nelda had never been at the Hotel Rio Del Mar, a fashionable place overlooking the ocean, but she'd heard about its high prices, its exclusive guest list.

"Formal, I suppose?" she asked Reck.

"Yes," he replied.

"You can wear that white taffeta," Mrs. Barrie spoke up, her eyes alight with interest.

Nelda nodded. She'd bought the white gown just before the fire and had worn it but once.

As soon as Reck was out of earshot Leila asked, "Are you engaged to him?"

"He's just giving me a rush," Nelda answered. "Besides I want to graduate before I think of marriage."

"He acts awfully possessive," Stan chimed in.

"It's she who looks as if she has him in the bag," Jack said. "In love with him, Sis?"

"I'm sure he'll do the right thing by your Nel," she evaded with an impudent little laugh.

They were interrupted by a knock at the back door. Nelda answered it. It was Manuel Moresi with a platter of ravioli.

"My mom sent this for Christmas. I don't beat my dog no more," he said all in one breath.

"Good!" she applauded. Their eyes met in an understanding that was the beginning of a firm friendship between them. "Come in, Manuel. I want to give you some homemade candy."

"Oh, boy!" He shot inside.

Nelda and Jack cut their own Christmas tree.

The Jewelry

CHRISTMAS morning was cold and gray with fog. It was pleasant in the old adobe house, though. Stan built a fire in the living room, a fire that danced on the rich furniture, on Mrs. Barrie's pale cheeks, on the dark waves of Nelda's hair as she toasted marshmallows on a long fork. All of them poignantly missed Stephen Barrie, but no one mentioned his name.

Nelda, Leila and Laura each had a share in the preparation of the dinner, although Leila, with her greater knowledge of cooking and sense of her own importance, supervised the meal.

After dinner they all went to see the new house, even Mrs. Barrie. Her two strong sons lifted her into the roadster, and Jack drove her to the scene.

Nelda went to bed that night feeling happier than she had since she came home from college. The old cooperative spirit was back in the family, she thought and went to sleep murmuring, "I'll graduate from Stanford yet! See if I don't!"

Next day she had a long talk with her mother about the future.

"Jack must have a microscope of his own and we will need a truck when the lettuce is ready to harvest," the girl said.

"But there's not enough money," Mrs. Barrie began in a frightened tone.

"There isn't," her daughter interrupted. "So I want your permission to sell that old jewelry Aunt Madeline left me."

"We could sell some of the old furniture," Mrs. Barrie offered.

"May have to do that later. The jewelry is the easiest thing we have to dispose of at present. Mother, I'm going to do everything I possibly can to get back to school."

BABSON on BUSINESS

ARE OUR LIVING STANDARDS DECLINING?

Babson Says Reciprocal Tariffs Essential To Peace

Babson Park, Mass., Dec. 17—The best protection for the American standard of living is to stimulate world commerce. Tariffs, quotas, and other trade barriers must be lowered if the world is to escape a complete economic and moral breakdown. Hence, I believe that Secretary of State Hull's reciprocal trade policy is the most encouraging development in world affairs today. The only way that trade barriers can be eliminated is by mutually lowering them over a period of time. Furthermore, such a program means sacrifice and unselfishness on the part of many groups for the benefit of all.

No nation can ever get a monopoly on prosperity. Good times and hard times cannot be staked off by political boundaries. The modern world is a single economic unit. Foreign trade is its lifeblood. We have prosperity when the ocean lanes are covered with heavily-laden cargo carriers. We have depressions when the world ship-yards are crowded with empty freighters. Foreign trade is more vital to prosperity in the United States than any single industry. Without it, we cannot have active trade, good jobs, or higher wages.

Foreign Trade Vital

Our overseas commerce equals only 10 per cent of our total trade in normal years. That 10 per cent, however, represents the difference between good and bad business. The income from our cotton and wheat crops controls the pocket-books of hundreds of communities in the South and West. Factory payrolls dictate business activity in the great industrial states of the North. In normal years, 40 per cent of our cotton crop, 15 per cent of our wheat harvest, 10 per cent of our automobile output, and 25 per cent of our office appliances are sold across the seas.

We must export a good portion of these products and many others because we raise and manufacture more than we can eat and use. Workers in Asia and Europe need our surplus goods. They all have surpluses which they must also sell. We need their goods and we buy them. If it were not for this exchange of surpluses we would have to cut our production to domestic consumption. Other countries would have to do likewise. The obvious result would be less goods for world workers to divide, with a corresponding lower standard of living. Yet here is a simple economic fact almost universally forgotten today:

Workers of the world can have more goods to divide only as more goods are produced!

How Tariffs Hurt

We sell part of our cotton surplus to Japan. She sells part of her silk surplus to us. For years, Japan has been improving her textile machinery. By efficient looms and low wages, she can undersell our cloth in our own domestic market. She buys our cotton. So, thinks Japan, why shouldn't we buy her textiles? But we do not let her sell cloth to us because it competes with our American cloths. Hence, we put a tariff on Japanese cloth. Japan gets angry. She looks for a new source of raw cotton. She invades and captures big chunks of China. China raised 2,259.00 bales of cotton in the 1935-1936 crop year. We exported 1,550,000 bales of cotton to Japan in the 1936-1937 crop year. How much cotton will we export to Japan two or three years from now?

Meanwhile, our cotton crop this year is the biggest in our history. So is the world crop. When our crop ran 12,000,000 bales a year, we exported 6,000,000 bales of cotton annually. This year with 18,000,000 bales, we will have sold about 5,400,000 abroad. What will become of our surplus? The price has already dropped from 15 cents to 8 cents a pound. The government is loaning planters 9 cents a pound on this year's crop. In addition, the new Farm Bill calls for cutting down our acreage by paying planters for not raising cotton. Certainly this means there will be less for Americans to trade.

Far-Reaching Effects

Business concerns, among others, pay the tax. They pass it right along to the consumer in higher retail prices. The cost of living increases, forcing workers to strike for higher wages, thus boosting manufacturing costs. Shoe imports increase because Czechoslovakian shoes can now undersell ours. American shoe makers secures an increase in shoe tariffs. Czechoslovakia retaliates by shifting her American cotton purchases to another nation. The net result for us: Higher taxes, lower cotton income, increased retail prices, less factory production, smaller payrolls. Thus, the vicious circle goes on. Each group wants the government to protect it or to guarantee it against losses.

If the American standard of living is to continue upward, we must make some sacrifices. Our standard of living is actually tending downward right now. We are constantly boosting our production costs. So long as the output of our workers increased faster than our costs, we were safe. Today, the magical efficiency of new machines is no longer able to close up the gap of shorter hours, higher pay, and bigger taxes! The unit output of each worker began to slide in early 1937. This means the standard of living has started down-hill. To turn it upward again, world production must be stimulated by fostering foreign trade.

Aid to Many Products

Unravelling the snarls built up over the past 40 years is an almost super-human task. Yet, in spite of tremendous pressure from American as well as foreign interests, Secretary Hull has negotiated 16 reciprocal trade agreements. He has had to fight with every American industry to take a little reduction; but for each reduction he has received a good concession from some foreign power. The net result has been a big growth in the mutual trade of these nations with an accompanying increase in living standards.

For instance, Canada, an important buyer of our wheat and automobiles, granted a 60 per cent tariff reduction on the former and from 12 to 25 per cent on the latter. France purchases a generous percentage of our office equipment and has granted a 25 per cent tariff reduction on some of these items. The following figures give further evidence of the satisfactory results of reciprocal pacts: —exports to treaty nations in 1934—up 22.2 per cent; to others, up 11.3 per cent. In 1935 they gained 14.1 and 4 per cent respectively. Imports in 1934 from treaty nations—up 46.8 per cent and from others up 45.7 per cent. In 1935 imports gained 21.9 and 15.6 per cent respectively.

Because of their great work in this respect, President Roosevelt and Secretary Hull should be nominated for the Nobel Peace Prize!

Ramblin' Notes About the Town

A group of men were chatting together on Wall street as they watched the Christmas shoppers hurrying by, and one of the group wondered if the children of today did not expect more for Christmas than the oldsters of today did when they were youngsters. He said that he could still distinctly remember the first holiday season when he went Christmas shopping. He said he was about 10 years old at the time and had with him the munificent sum of 50 cents to spend for gifts for his Dad and Ma and his younger brother, but let him tell the story:

"I certainly thought I had important money with me," he said with a chuckle as he recalled the fifty-cent piece that he clutched tightly in one hand that was jammed deep in one of his pants' pockets. "When I got to the business section I guess I visited every store there was.

Before going on the shopping trip he said he had made up a list of gifts and how much each was to cost. He said he forgot how many times he had revised the list and checked over each item, although the items were few in number. Then at the last minute he recalled that next door to him lived one of his boy friends whose father had been laid up for several months, and he realized that that meant that Christmas was apt to be rather slim in that house.

Finally he said he decided to buy two packages of Dad's favorite tobacco. In those days it sold for a nickel a pack. He decided to give his friend's father one of the packs and his Dad the other.

That left 40 cents still to be spent for gifts. He used 20 cents more to purchase handkerchiefs, deciding to divide them equally between his mother and his friend's mother, and that left 20 cents yet to be spent.

With 10 of the cents he purchased a book. It was King Solomon's Mines by H. Rider Haggard. That he intended to give to his boy friend and with the remaining 10 cents he purchased a gift for his younger brother.

Then with his purchases all completed he trudged home, a distance of several miles as he had no money left to pay carfare, although carfare in those days was only a nickel.

Arriving home with his gifts in his arms he retired to his room where he wrapped them up and wrote with a pencil on each package "Merry Christmas to ——" whoever the package was intended for.

Then before he wrapped up his friend's book he sat down and read it through. He was a fast reader and he said that he never enjoyed a story so much as he did the one he had purchased.

It was late Christmas Eve when he finally completed reading the book and he then wrapped it up and putting on his hat and coat he stole over to his friend's house, laid the package on the doorstep and rang the bell and then hid until he saw someone open the door and pick up the package.

"Yes, sir," he said, "that was one of the finest Christmases I ever had. I had often heard Dad read somewheres in the Bible that it was more blessed to give than receive but I never realized the full meaning of that sentence until that Christmas, and I have never forgotten it.

As he concluded his story the other men in the group nodded their heads in confirmation. The story told by that man is not an unusual story, and that is why the Christmas Cheer Committee has been able to bring Christmas home to children in the city who might otherwise be forgotten by Santa Claus. They have and are receiving the support of citizens who have not forgotten the days when they were youngsters and what Christmas meant to them.

Time Marches On note: They're still singing the Merry Widow waltz, but it has been 30 years since "The Merry Widow" opened in New York. The success of that song has never been duplicated, and the vogue it created in "the mad Balkan whirl" is still in favor. Ironically, the girl who originated the role and became the embodiment of the Viennese femme du monde was Ethel Jackson—an American.

IN A DAY or two workmen will build huge corrals up and down West street, New York's largest thoroughfare. But they will not be designed for cattle. They will hold the hundreds of thousands of Christmas trees which are to be retailed into a million homes in the metropolitan area.

Most of these trees are gobbled up by small distributors, but individuals may purchase any tree desired at prices ranging from 60 cents to $100. Some of the trees are 50 feet high.

Sundown Stories

Santa's Talk

By MARY GRAHAM BONNER

SANTA took off his big, top red coat for it was warm in Willy Nilly's house.

"Of course," said Santa, "I can understand how these questions keep being asked. Babies grow up into children and they think of these questions and maybe when they're thinking them or asking them there is no one around to give the right answers.

"First they ask me sometimes why the dog in their house who always barks at every sound other than the footsteps of a member of the family doesn't bark when I come around. Well, just as you have animals for friends so do the pets in households care for me. They remember from year to year what my footsteps sound like—and what the hoofs of my reindeer sound like on the roofs. New little puppies born since I've been around before just sleepily stir when they see me.

"Dogs know friends from strangers, and they know because they are wise and understand friendship and realize I'm a friend to children.

"Then another question that is asked is how I go to apartment houses where there are no chimneys to climb down. I use the fire escapes. Or I use the front doors because there isn't a daddy or a mother who wouldn't let Santa Claus in on Christmas Eve.

"Yet another question is how do I manage to travel where there is no snow. Santa keeps up with the times. I can use a plane, and even before planes I could be driven to snow-less places.

"There's always a way of getting to places if you want to do so and certainly Santa wants to do so!"

Don't let anybody call you a crested hadrosaurus unless you don't object to being called "numbskull" or "bonehead". This hadrosaurus lived in Montana 100,000,000 years ago. It was a huge creature with a head more than two feet long and a crest like the comb of a rooster. In all that two-feet of head the creature carried only a two-ounce brain. The scientists think it must have been the dumbest animal that ever lived and left its bones to be assembled in a museum.

PATTERN 5721

Gay dancing peasants worked out in 6 and 8-to-the-inch crosses will add a gay and colorful note to your luncheon cloth and napkins. The children will love them on their bureau scarfs and we've even seen these peasants dancing gaily across the yoke or hem of a little girl's frock. Done in gay colors on natural linen or unbleached muslin they supply the smartest possible touch of decoration. In pattern 5721 you will find a transfer pattern of two motifs 3¼x14 inches, two motifs 7¾x7¾ inches, two motifs 5x5½ inches, four smaller motifs; illustrations of the stitches used; material requirements; color suggestions.

To obtain this pattern send 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred) to the Kingston Daily Freeman, Household Arts Dept., 259 W. 14th street, New York, N. Y. Be sure to write plainly your NAME, ADDRESS and PATTERN NUMBER.

Bandits Rob Hotel

New York, Dec. 17 (AP).—Three bandits invaded the lobby of the Hotel Vanderbilt on Park avenue early today, held up the cashier, and fled with $500.

One shot was fired by the only bandit who showed a gun, as the cashier, Edward J. Moran, of Jersey City, grappled with a robber. The bullet missed Moran.

HOME BUREAU

WOODSTOCK

Woodstock, Dec. 17—The Woodstock unit of the Ulster County Home Bureau held its first meeting on foods and entertaining at the home of Mrs. Ivan Summers on Wednesday. It was an all day meeting which began with the preparation and serving of a buffet supper and ended with a meeting with Miss Everice Parsons, Home Demonstration Agent.

The preparation of the meal, the table decoration and serving were done by members under the direction of the leader, Mrs. Besse Cohn. A simple but delicious meal was served at about one o'clock in a room decorated with Christmas greens and candles. Mrs. Cohn had attended the county leaders meeting and was able to give the members the information she had received. Mrs. George Bassow acted as hostess during the serving of the meal.

Miss Parsons arrived after the meal and helped in the planning of the year's program, which will include a discussion group as well as the regular meetings.

Nearly 20 members and friends were present to make plans with Miss Parsons, for meetings on foods and entertaining, home management, grooming, good health and landscaping.

The discussion group will be under the guidance of Miss Florence Webster. The first course will be entitled "About Ourselves" and will deal with problems of better understanding of each other.

The next meeting is to be the second lesson on Good Grooming and will be given on January 5 by the leader, Mrs. George Bassow. The hostess is whose home the meeting will be held has not yet been determined upon. The Woodstock Unit was organized too late to take advantage of the first lesson.

It was brought out at the meeting that members may visit all of the groups, even if they do not care to participate. Also nonmembers are always welcome guests at the meetings.

The partially completed calendar for the year is as follows:

January 5 — Grooming, Mrs. Bassow, leader.

January 10—Pneumonia, Miss Parsons, leader. Fatigue, Miss Parsons, leader.

January 18—Foods, second lesson, Mrs. Cohn, leader.

February 2—Kitchen conference. Pneumonia, Miss Ploss, leader.

February 16—Foods, third lesson, Mrs. Cohn, leader.

February 23—Living-room conference, leader Miss Brenan, hostess Mrs. George Layman.

March 2—Grooming, Mrs. Bassow, leader. Business meeting, election of officers and program planning.

March 16—Landscaping, Miss Anita Smith, leader.

April 6—Pneumonia, Miss Parsons, leader. Fatigue, Miss Parsons, leader.

April 20—Landscaping, leader Miss Smith.

Accord.

Accord, Dec. 17.—Accord Home Bureau met for the second lesson on Pneumonia Control at the Rochester Reformed Church Tuesday afternoon with 36 present.

Mrs. Edward Davenport gave a short review of the causes, symptoms, serums and care of the patient given at the first lesson. Then she introduced Miss Ploss, county health nurse, who was assisted by Miss Borst.

Miss Ploss stressed again the necessity of calling a doctor early and of taking a specimen of sputum for test to determine the type of pneumonia. Providing complete rest for the patient is the most important part of nursing care. Also remember that pneumonia is communicable and take every precaution to prevent its spread.

Miss Ploss advised that the attendant should be relieved so that she may get sufficient rest and fresh aid in order to stay well, cheerful and efficient.

Then Miss Ploss proceeded to demonstrate with a patient in bed how to care for a patient with a communicable disease, to save his strength and make him comfortable.

Those attending were urged to ask questions, which proved a benefit to all.

Those present were Mrs. Burten Wood, Mrs. Kenneth Tompkins, Mrs. Percy Greene, Mrs. Hasbrouck Decker, Mrs. Everett Proper, Mrs. Gussie Hyatt, Mrs. Marie Weigele, Mrs. Veronica Quick, Mrs. Anne Bishop, Beatrice H. Cole, Mrs. Gertrude McAuliffe from Kerhonkson. Other visitors from Accord were Mrs. Dorothy Miller, Mrs. Kenneth Rider, Mrs. D. Krupin, Mrs. Betty Burrows, Mrs. LeRoy Kelder, Mrs. Ben Scholten.

Regular members present were Mrs. John C. Osterhoudt, Mrs. Elmer Hendrickson, Mrs. John L. Schoonmaker, Mrs. Earl Schoonmaker, Mrs. L. J. Haines, Mrs. S. Chait, Mrs. J. H. Smith, Mrs. Lester J. Roosa, Mrs. Frank Zelle, Mrs. M. E. Pratt, Mrs. Mary E. Smith, Mrs. Elmer Smith, Miss Bertha L. Coons, Mrs. Betty Friedberg, Mrs. Percy N. Gazlay, Mrs. William Countryman, Mrs. Joseph E. Burger, Mrs. Edward Davenport, Mrs. Marion E. Sahler.

The next lesson in this series will be on Diet for the Pneumonia Patient on January 18,

Police Inaugurate Safety Campaign

In his safety article today, Lieutenant Charles Phaney discusses pedestrians and safety isles. His article follows:

PEDESTRIANS AND SAFETY ISLES

There was never a more opportune time to advise with pedestrians and motorists than at this, The Holiday Season, a time when there is undoubtedly more people out shopping than at any time of the year, and the fact that they have presents for their loved ones on their minds they are forgetful as to what danger they are running into by crossing the streets between intersections in going from store to store to make their purchases. Why not take time enough out to think, before going shopping, that if I dart across the street and get struck by an automobile or if the motorist speeds through the street or through safety isles and an accident of some serious nature occurs, what an unpleasant Christmas they are going to have, just at a time when everything should be cheerful.

Of course at this busy season the police are inclined to give a little more consideration to the motorists than they would under normal conditions and that too makes it worse for the pedestrian in crossing between intersections, especially when cars are double parked, and that will happen occasionally in the best regulated communities.

Street markings and Safety Isles are just what they represent, a safe place to walk or stand, and if both pedestrians and motorists will observe those regulations, accidents are going to be eliminated.

Citing a comparison for the first nine months of 1936 with the first nine months of 1937 in the City of Kingston, there has been a decrease of 18 per cent in accidents; a decrease of 50 per cent in people killed; a decrease of 17 per cent in persons injured and a decrease of 14 per cent in drivers injured; while generally throughout the state, outside of Kingston, there has been an increase relative to accidents as high as 17 per cent with no place in the records showing a decrease, therefore it is not too difficult to instruct our citizens as to how to conform to the rules and regulations of the highway, for the simple reason that the greater majority of our citizens are too intelligent and law abiding to place themselves in such a predicament as to be a menace to themselves and others.

We feel that we have the cooperation of most of you, but what we want is the cooperation of everyone, to such an extent that next year our records for safe driving as well as the jay-walking record will show a greater decrease in all accidents. What better thought could we have in mind, than to endeavor as best we can to protect your lives and property. Pull with the traffic officers who are out this week especially to teach you the safe method of going from place to place without being maimed or injured, and please remember, that the way we are endeavoring to teach you this week is the way you should conduct yourselves both on foot and in cars indefinitely.

Let us regulate your mode of travel during this drive to the extent that on Christmas day you will not be served your Holiday dinner in bed as a result of an unnecessary accident that happened by failing to comply with the directions of the police officers that were stationed at various points throughout the city, they know the law and are trying as best they can to pass it on to you, for your benefit and welfare.

If you abide by our directions instead of criticising them you will surely save yourself both money and great suffering; remember, it is you that pays in the event of an accident, not the police officers who are endeavoring to teach you.

Slice Fruit Cake Thin

Use a very sharp knife to cut fruit cake into thin slices. Dip the knife into warm water frequently. Doing so will help prevent crumbling.

For the past twenty years great quantities of turquoise have been mined in New Mexico, Nevada, Arizonia and California. The best of the New Mexican stones were guaranteed to keep their color and were marked with an O trade mark on the back.

Woodstock Junior Library Movement Reveals Benefits

Woodstock, Dec. 16—Reports by the librarian and the several committee chairmen heard at the regular December meeting of the board of trustees of the Woodstock library last Thursday showed gratifying results from the efforts made this fall to increase and improve the facilities of the junior department and also of that section made use of by the high school students of the township.

The library has felt a justifiable pride in the service it gives, demonstrated nowhere more clearly than in its extension work which has reached to the young and old of the entire township, at several new plans to serve more efficiently the school needs have brought most gratifying results.

The number of young readers and students bent on gathering information necessary for their school work has shown a definite increase, and one has only to visit the library during the afternoon and evening hours when it is open, to be freshly convinced of the great service it is rendering.

Planned under the direction of Mrs. Lillis Norton, chairman of the extension committee, with the cooperation of Miss Isobel Doughty, chairman of the book committee, and of the librarian, two special parties have been given for all the teachers of the township schools. On these occasions details of shelf arrangements, book lists, and the special picture files were explained and details for their use by the children were worked out. Also there have been held two evening parties for the children themselves in which the youngsters took keen interest. Special entertainment was provided, songs, recitations, playlets and the showing of the sesquicentennial movies, with refreshments served at the close of the evening.

Other Work

In addition to the emphasis laid upon this work among the children, reports of the various committee chairmen outlined the work that has been accomplished since the October meeting. Since the fiscal year of the library does not correspond with the calendar year, some comment was also made upon the year's work. George Neher, chairman of administration, reported that with the outside painting finished, gutters repaired, and other minor improvements, the building now stands in better condition than it has been for a number of years. The next activity of this committee will be work on the trees, several of which need the attention of a tree surgeon.

Miss Doughty reported the usual activities of the book committee in selecting and purchasing new books, and stressed especially the work of the mending committee by whom 75 volumes have been reconditioned since October. Mrs. Schoonmaker gave the figures of the membership and an account of the publicity. Mr. Elwyn, treasurer, reported a comfortable balance in both the checking and the interest accounts. Mrs. Thompson, librarian, stated that the year's circulation would, by the end of the month, equal that of last year, something over 18,000 books passing over her desk. The Wednesday evening hours are more than justifying the effort and expense.

The board members present at the meeting were Martin Comeau, George Neher, Bruno Zimm, Will S. Elwyn, the Rev. A. Walter Baker, Miss Alice Owen, Miss Isobel Doughty, Mrs. George Layman, Mrs. Edwin Schoonmaker and Mrs. W. O. Thompson.

"In England," says the dictionary, "equerries are officers of the royal household in the department of the Master of Horse." It has puzzled some Americans that the Duke of Windsor, in his exile, has been attended everywhere by an equerry, particularly in view of the absence of horses in these travels. Now it comes out. An equerry is also a buffer between his employer and a boresome world.

Chinese Morale Broke on Sunday

on its leaders, killing six of them and turning back the rest.

But the mad infection raced through the city.

By dark, Nanking's main streets were filled with troops from all positions outside the walls. First they walked. Then they broke into a wild run. As the pace quickened, panic-stricken Chinese soldiers shed their rifles, helmets and uniforms.

The wounded who were able to walk wandered helplessly through the streets. Many soldiers were shot by their comrades in the stampede to the river gate on the west—the doorway to escape.

Near the war ministry a truck stalled. Within a few minutes the roadway was jammed with men, pack mules, new French 75 millimeter guns, anti-aircraft guns and baby tanks.

Ammunition Truck Burns

Someone tried to break the jam by setting fire to a gasoline truck. Soon the flames reached ammunition wagons. Shells exploded. Animals and humans near the jam were killed, burned or mangled.

The river gate sandbag barricade turned out to be a death trap for many. Some were shot down by cursing comrades.

The fallen were trampled into a shapeless pulp. Before the gate's superstructure was burned by guards attempting to turn the tide, thousands reached the Yangtze and crossed to Pukow in junks, sampans and launches. Many were drowned in the crossing.

Monday Japanese were mopping up remnants of Chinese troops inside the walls.

Tuesday 13 Japanese destroyers and gunboats arrived at the waterfront and strafed Chinese hiding across the river in Pukow. Encirclement of the city was completed.

Japanese cavalry forced their way into riverside gate over a still smoldering mass of human pulp.

Chinese losses during the four-day fight in and around Nanking were about 5,000. Several hundred more were shot or trampled in the rout. Japanese since then have shot another thousand Chinese soldiers and several hundred civilians.

I had no way of knowing the extent of Japanese casualties, but I saw several hundred white boxes containing ashes of the dead and several score of mule litters with wounded brought into Nanking.

South China Threatens.

Shanghai, Dec. 17 (AP).—Chinese-Japanese warfare threatened today to spread to the south China coast in far-flung attacks of Japanese forces "not satisfied" with the capture of Nanking.

The Japanese communique proclaiming the formal triumphal entry into the fallen Chinese capital declared the "armed forces of the empire are determined in their endeavor to carry on to a conclusion of the purposes of the present expedition — establishment of lasting peace in the Orient."

Chinese sources expected a Japanese attempt to invade southern Kwangtung province and attack Canton, 60 miles northwest of the British crown colony of Hongkong.

Vice Admiral Kiyoshi Masegawa's communique declared the Japanese government was "not satisfied with the success of its arms with the capture of Nanking. * * * the situation is far from being settled."

He added that Japanese efforts to accord every protection to third powers had been marred by "a most unhappy incident involving American and British warships which was deplored from the bottom of the heart."

A cortege of American, British and Japanese gunboats, meanwhile, carried toward Shanghai the dead, wounded and other survivors of the Nanking of the United States gunboat Panay and destruction of three Standard Oil vessels. An American naval board started an investigation of the tragedy.

Victory Parade, Nanking.

At the same time, Japanese army and navy forces staged their victory parade into Nanking. Other Japanese warriors were arrayed on a widening front stretching into the village area of Kiangsu province, north of Shanghai and Nanking.

Generalissimo Chiang Kai-Shek earlier today had declared in a broadcast appeal to the Chinese people to continue the fight against the invaders that the basis of China's future success in resisting Japan was not in the cities but "in villages all over China."

Press reports were that the generalissimo had ordered military authorities of Kwantung province to prepare for war in view of anticipated Japanese invasion of southern China.

Troops were reported boarding Japanese transports near Shanghai, bound either for Southern China or a drive toward Hankow, one of the cities in which the Chinese government was established.

To meet the Japanese drive up the Yangtze, Chinese constructed [illegible] warships at Kiugiang, about 200 miles above Hankow is another 300 miles up the river. Press reports were that three Japanese warships had steamed up the Yangtze and exchanged fire with Chinese batteries at Anking, capital of Anhwei Province.

A Japanese spokesman declared today that General Iwane Matsui, Japanese commander, had not ordered attacks on all ships on the middle Yangtse as had been reported Sunday at the time the British gunboats Ladybird and Bee and merchant craft were under fire.

The spokesman said a reported announcement to that effect by Colonel Hashimoto was being investigated.

May Not Reply Directly

Tokyo, Dec. 17 (AP).—Japan may refrain from a direct reply to the United States protest in the Panay incident, the foreign office spokesman indicated today, on the ground that the government had apologized before the American note was delivered.

He said the question was still being weighed but pointed out:

"The Japanese note of apology was given (to U. S. Ambassador Joseph C. Grew) before the United States note was handed to Foreign Minister Koki Hirota.

"Therefore, whether some other note must be given has not yet been decided."

(On Tuesday—two days after the U. S. gunboat Panay and three American-owned commercial vessels were attacked on the Yangtze river with three fatalities—Hirota forwarded to the American ambassador a note which generally met the already formulated undelivered demands of Washington.)

Comment Declined

(Informed of the spokesman's disclosure, state department officials in Washington declined to comment early today. Informed observers, however, expressed belief that a direct reply to the American protest would be forthcoming.)

The foreign office spokesman flatly denied that Japanese river craft had machine-gunned the Panay before it sank.

(Secretary of State Hull announced in Washington yesterday that supplementary representations would be made to Japan, based on information that the gunboat was sprayed by machine-gun fire from Japanese army motorboats.)

The foreign office spokesman's assertion followed a direct denial, by an adjutant of navy minister, Admiral Mitsumasa Yonai, of the reported machine-gunning.

Premier Fumimaro Konoye was expected to ask the Imperial court today to petition Emperor Hirohito to call a conference of members of the government and the Imperial headquarters, Japan's supreme war authority, "to discuss policies of the empire apropos of China."

Preliminary arrangements already were completed for the premier's move and, if successful, it would bring leaders of the government, navy and army into conference tomorrow in the presence of the emperor. Such a gathering had not been called for years.

Two "Torch" Deaths

Pittsburgh, Dec. 17 (AP) — The coroner's office investigated today the "human torch" deaths of a 50-year-old automobile salesman and his 39-year-old wife. Mrs. Cora Woodring Kretchman died today of burns in a suburban McKeesport Hospital where her husband, Charles, died yesterday of shock and burns. Roy Woodring, a son of Mrs. Kretchman by a previous marriage told Deputy Coroner F. Jackson that he went to his home in nearby Mifflin township and found his mother and step-father in the bathroom, their clothing ablaze.

500 Persons at Chevrolet Show Thursday Night

Upwards of 500 guests of the Colonial City Chevrolet, Inc., enjoyed for over two hours the fine entertainment given Thursday night under the auspices of the firm at their show rooms, Broadway at Albany avenue.

The program embraced an unusually interesting showing of motion pictures, entertaining and educational, a very pleasing vaudeville entertainment by Joey Adams and his Broadway Revue, including a four-piece orchestra and an added number presenting Miss Roberta Coots of Port Jervis, a student at the Moran School, who gave two guitar and harmonica selections that were received with hearty applause.

The first part of the program was given over to sound motion pictures, some half a dozen different reels sponsored by General Motors, being shown. Outstanding was the picture showing the advances made by modern science in the production of precision instruments that will measure almost unbelievable quantities and proportions, such as the weight of a grain of dust, the pressure exerted by pressing with a finger upon a heavy steel rail, what a millionth of an inch looks like when compared with the width of a human hair, etc. Some of these instruments were shown in use in the plant of the Chevrolet Motor Co., which was about the limit of the extent to which advertising was injected into the program of the evening. "Circus Daze" was another picture that proved to be popular, showing stunts that test human skill and endurance to the limit. Another was the Walt Disney picture of the adventures of Cinderella, shown in technicolor and with sound effects.

Jimmie Little, Chevrolet tenor, formerly with Rudy Vallee, proved to be a real singer and responded to numerous hearty encores. Mary Astor gave a fine exhibition of tap dancing, appearing in several numbers, and Joey Adams as master of ceremonies was as original as could be desired.

Christmas Cards Of The Movie Stars

WALLKILL

Wallkill, Dec. 16.—The Woman's Bible Study class reelected the following officers for the coming year, at its meeting at the parsonage on Tuesday evening: President, Mrs. Eva Hare; first vice president, Mrs. Edwin Jansen; second vice president, Mrs. C. E. Caswell; secretary, Mrs. Claude Decker, and treasurer, Mrs. Edward Sheeley. A committee of three, Mrs. George Crist, Mrs. Samuel Lawson and Mrs. Claude Decker, was appointed to distribute the annual Christmas boxes. Miss Margaret Edsall entertained with two piano solos. After the business meeting an hour of Bible study was in charge of James Lyons, after which refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. F. R. Bosch.

"Home Personality" divided in three parts was discussed at the Woman's Club meeting at the home of Mrs. Belle Carr on Friday afternoon. They were recreation, house appearance and nutrition. Mrs. F. R. Bosch discussed "Rrecreation", bringing out the idea that the home should provide games and music for recreation and that the parents should arrange their work so as to have their play hours with the family. Christmas carols were sung and Mrs. C. E. Penny entertained with a vocal solo, "There's Christmas in the Air." Mrs. Harry Dunn's topic was "House Appearance", and Miss Georgia Crowell read an article arranged by Mrs. Elwin Sheeley about the arranging of the furniture for the best comfort of the family and a pleasing appearance. Mrs. Charles Moore discussed "Nutrition", bringing out the idea of the arrangement of food, to make it more appetizing for children and invalids. After the meeting a social hour followed with refreshments served from a prettily decorated table of Christmas wreaths and candles by Mrs. James B. Crowell, social chairman.

Mr. and Mrs. Hugh Galbraith, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Lipsett, Mr. and Mrs. C. E. Caswell, Mrs. Fred Lawrence, Mrs Frank Galick, Samuel Bowden and Clarence McCormick visited the Veterans' Hospital at Castle Point on Sunday afternoon. Gifts of Christmas cards and stamps, cleansing tissues and "warm hoods" were given each patient in Ward E-3 at this time by the Auxiliary of Cornelius Rose Post No. 1034. Also three sweaters and a bathrobe were taken.

Motorists Loud In Praise About Road Conditions

People who were compelled to use the county highways Thursday morning were loud in their praise for the manner in which the main arteries of the county had been sanded so as to make travel comparatively safe.

The snow and sleet which fell during the early hours of the morning made travel extremely dangerous until the county highway department had sanded down hills and dangerous turns. This work was undertaken as soon as the condition warranted action and by the time workers were en route to their jobs in the morning the roads had been placed in most cases in good shape. The work was continued throughout the day and all roads are now in excellent condition.

One worker who commutes daily from up the Ulster & Delaware line arrived at his desk Thursday morning on time as usual and reported he had traveled the entire route without chains.

For emergencies of this kind sand and fine crushed stone as well as cinders are piled at advantageous points along the main highways for use by sanding crews throughout the winter when ice and sleet make travel difficult. Sanding crews are dispatched to cover the county as soon as dangerous conditions exist.

No Passengers for Ship

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—A last minute strike of part of its crew sent the Monarch of Bermuda plowing southward today sans passengers. The Furness Bermuda Line cancelled reservations of 450 passengers yesterday after 290 of of the 420 members of the crew went on strike. The liner sailed as scheduled but carried only freight and mail. Officials explained that enough crew members remained aboard to operate the Monarch as a freight ship.

It is most unfortunate that enthusiasm and sense are so seldom on speaking terms with each other.

Verdict of No Cause of Action

A verdict for defendant was returned Thursday afternoon in the action brought by Cornelius DuBois against Stephen Breitfeller and Eldridge & Company, Queens automobile dealers. Mr DuBois of New Paltz sought to recover for injuries which he suffered when struck by a Packard car operated by Breitfeller on the New Paltz road three years ago. He contended he was standing along the roadway waiting for the car to pass when it struck him and Herbert Lefever, his companion

He blamed the operator of the car. The defendant claimed that the two had just left a tavern and despite his efforts to avoid them by swinging his car to the soft shoulder of the highway the men staggered or fell into the side and front of his car

The verdict of no cause of action in the DuBois action is similar to the one brought some time ago in the Lefever action, a companion action

Peter H Harp and N LeVan Haver appeared for the plaintiff and William A Eatl of Newburgh for the defendants.

The Christmas party at West Hurley M. E. hall will be held Tuesday, December 21, starting at 8 p. m. under the auspices of the young people. There will be an entertainment with free refreshments. A free will offering will be taken. All are invited.

Hollywood Sights And Sounds

By ROBBIN COONS

HOLLYWOOD—It's to be four pictures a year, no more, for Skippy, alias Asta, alias Mr. Smith.

Henry East, owner and manager of the brightest little wirehair in pictures—"The Thin Man," "The Awful Truth," etc.—now turns down "unimportant" roles for his protege. East thinks too many screen appearances will jeopardize Skippy's screen value, which is considerable, as East recently refused to sell the dog for $25,000....

Over-Primping

Speculation: Would any movie fan notice it if the star didn't rush over, between takes, to have the hairdresser smooth every last strand of hair into place? It seemed especially silly, seeing Deanna Durbin having her nice bob patted and brushed when it looked no different before or after. What 14-year-old school-girl, excited as Deanna was supposed to be in the scene, ever looked so perfectly coiffured?

Fred Allen (in "Sally, Irene, and Mary") memorizes his lines faithfully but the other day he fumbled a couple he was supposed to be reading Jimmy Durante from a letter.... Not strange, however, because they never, never write anything on movie letters.

French Do Own Make-Up

Today's quotation, from Hallwell Hobbes: "Life begins at 50, not 40. All the major emotions, love, hate, jealously, great ambition, pride of power, determination to succeed at any price, are or should be the sole prerogatives of youth.... When hot blood cools and age advances, then is the time to readjust one's viewpoints and so arrange life that its autumn shall be one of beauty and rounded-out accomplishment...." (Hobbes, by this reckoning, recently turned 10 years of age....)

Danielle Darrieux, like Annabella, will do her own make-up for pictures ... Must be an old French custom, inasmuch as Simone's first major battle in Hollywood was fought with the make-up man.... Annabella is concentrating on American ways and speech now.... Orders in her home are for no French dialogue, and none but typically American food....

Louise Hovick has the largest portable dressing room in town ... It's her honeymoon trailer—with two rooms, bath, kitchen, and kennel for her six dachshunds.... The latter don't come to work however....

Christmas Times

Oh, what joy there is in living on Christmas;
What a charm there is in giving on Christmas.
What a pleasure 'tis to see children dancing
Merrily 'round the decorated tree on Christmas.

Is your heart becoming a little more soft?. . . That's the spirit of Santa Claus, coming only once a year, but splendid even for so short a while.

Visitor—Do you think it is proper to use profanity to a mule?

Farmer—So far as my own feelings are concerned it is highly improper. But when you are trying to get along with as sensitive and exacting an animal as a mule, you've simply got to humor him.

Of all the things you wear, your expression is the most important.

She—Funny no one seemed to realize what a bad egg he was while he was rich.

He—My dear, a bad egg is only known when it's broke.

The English laugh at a joke three times:
First—When they hear it.
Second—When they tell it.
Third—When they understand it.

All the world loves a fat man, if he answers to the name of Claus.

Student (looking up from his book)—More than five thousand elephants a year go to make our piano keys.

Landlady—Really? It's remarkable what those beasts can be trained to do.

Poor—Were you presented at court when you were in England?

Rich—Yes, and I had to pay five pounds fine.

Read it or not:
Chinese tongs do not exist in China.

First Drunk—I found (hic) a half dollar.

Second Drunk—It'sh mine, it'sh got my name on it.

First Drunk — What's your name?

Second Drunk — E. Pluribus Unum.

First Drunk — Yeah, it'sh yoursh

We give up luxuries for war. Do we give up luxuries for peace?

Bill—What's that noise over there?

Tedd—Oh, Battling Bloke, the fighter, is having a tooth pulled.

One of the big secrets of happiness is to tackle our work joyously. To attack it with gusto and a smile. To wade into it with the spirit of a conquering chief. When one works joyously at the wood pile, the ledger, or the typewriter, the hours flash by, the sunshine enters our heart and the world seems a good place in which to live.

To come to our work with a grouch, a frown, and inward reluctance, is to cramp our creative energies and stifle our power to think. The joyous spirit is the spark that gets things done! It releases a flow of ideas. It makes the chips fly. Joyousness attracts the best.

Tourer—So your daughter is going around the world during the Christmas holidays. Is she prepared for the journey?
DeTourer—Well, she can say "No" in 12 languages.

Of all sad words of tongue or pen, the saddest are these. "Don't open till Christmas."

Traveler—Can I get anything to eat in this dump?
Negro Waiter—Yes, sah, yo' sho' kin.
Traveler—Such as what?
Negro Waiter—Such as it is, sah.

The train roared past the station. Above the noise the station agent heard a yell. Rushing out on the platform, he saw a man sprawling out alongside the tracks. A little girl was standing by:
Agent—Did he try to catch the train?
Little Girl—He did catch it, but it got away from him.

Daughter Born To Felton Girl

Rockford, Ill., Dec. 17 (AP).—A daughter has been born to Bernice Felton, 18-year-old companion of Lester Brockelhurst, 23, on his 'crime tour" which resulted in charges he murdered three men.

Persons close to the family said the child was born early Tuesday. The Rockford girl was acquitted at Lonoke, Ark., June 25 of a murder charge in connection with the slaying of Victor A. Gates, Little Rock land owner, for which Brockelhurst was sentenced to death. He has asked a rehearing of his appeal.

3 Recovering from Gas

Buffalo, N. Y., Dec. 17 (AP)—Two small children and their young aunt were recovering in hospitals here today from the effects of gas that killed a five-year-old girl yesterday.

Medical Examiner Rocco N. Demonicis said the gas escaped from the kitchen water heater in which the flame accidentally had been blown out.

Anyway, it isn't unlawful for a business or professional man to do a full day's work.

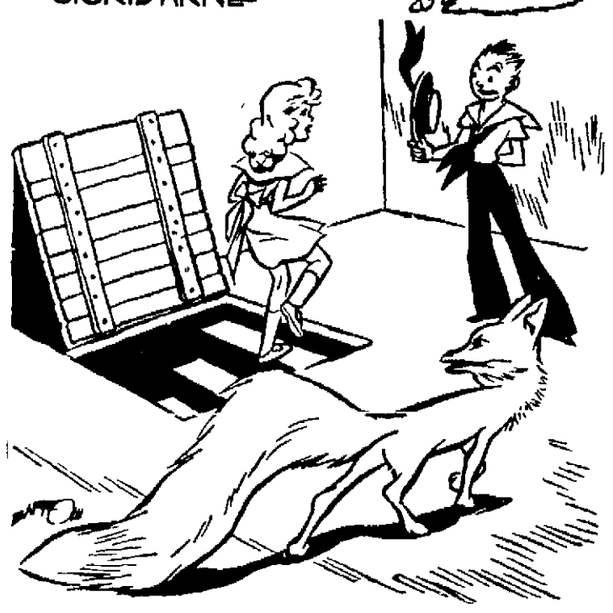
SANTA WHITE FOX

by SIGRID ARNE



SHE LOOKED STARTLED WHEN SHE SAW THE SAILOR

THE STORY SO FAR. The white fox has asked the sailor and the tiny squirrel into his den, not knowing that they have come to rescue Helga, the doll, which the fox stole from toyland.

Chapter 17

POOR HELGA

The white fox led the sailor and the tiny squirrel into his den. He asked the sailor to be seated. He sat down himself.

This time, too, he tapped on the floor and a little door opened, and two moles came up some stairs.

"Dinner," said the white fox.

"Yes, sir," said the moles and they went back down the stairs.

While this was going on the sailor looked quickly about for a trace of Helga. In the corner of the room he saw her ermine cape on a footstool.

"Now, let's see the squirrel," said the fox. The sailor handed him the tiny squirrel and it ran up the white fox's paw to his shoulder and tickled his big, peaked ear.

"Ho, ho," laughted the fox. "I never saw anything like it."

"Er—," hesitated the sailor trying to look as though it were unimportant, "you have such a fine home, I'm surprised you live here all alone."

The Prisoner

The white fox squinted at the sailor very hard for a moment. Then he grinned saying, "You know, you look so much like one of Santa's dolls that I hesitated to invite you in a while ago."

"Is that so?" said the sailor looking very innocent.

"Well," said the fox, "I have a Christmas present, a doll by the name of Helga. But she wants to go away so I've put her below stairs with the servants. We'll have her up for dinner."

Just then the trap door opened in the floor and the two neat moles returned with six other moles all carrying trays heaped with dishes for dinner.

"Send Helga up," ordered the white fox.

The sailor had never seen Helga but he had heard much about her. He was a little surprised when he saw her. She came up the stairs very slowly and looked around as though she were afraid. She looked startled when she saw the sailor.

"Come Here"

"Here's a nick-nack for you," said the fox and he handed her the tiny squirrel. She stroked it very carefully with one finger.

"Come here," said the fox suddenly in a rough voice.

Helga approached him slowly.

"Have you got over that notion that you want to go back to toyland?" the fox growled fiercely.

Helga didn't say a word

"You are my Christmas present, and you're going to stay here," he said.

A big tear trickled down Helga's white cheek.

Tomorrow: Outwitting The Fox.

PREVIEWED

Today

Broadway. "Live, Love and Learn" A carefree young artist has quite the time of it in the main feature at the midtown theatre with Robert Montgomery handling the main role with all the suave ability motion picture addicts expect from him. The play ridicules romance, makes fun of almost everything and has a fine time doing it. Thanks to an unusually gifted cast, "Live, Love and Learn" becomes a spirited and laughable comedy offering and Rosalind Russell, Robert Benchley, Helen Vinson and Mickey Rooney all contribute outstanding performances.

Kingston. "Music for Madame" and "Roll Along Cowboy" Another semi-operatic number is to be heard in the first number at the Kingston with Nino Martini starred and supported by the rising Joan Fontaine The play follows the usual pattern of a singer who would make good and Mr. Martini is given every chance to unloose his magnificent voice. "Roll Along Cowboy" is the other part of the program and it offers Smith Ballew, a former orchestra leader turned screen cowboy, in a story of the west with Mr. Ballew offering several vocal selections during festivities.

Orpheum: "San Quentin" and "Heart of the Rockies." Life behind the scenes of one of America's most famous prisons is to be witnessed on the Orpheum screen with Pat O'Brien and Humphrey Bogart co-featured in a rugged tale of heroism as an arm of the law tracks down and captures a killer. "Heart of the Rockies" is the other attrcation, a western thriller with Bob Livingston.

Tomorrow

Broadway: "The Firefly." One of the most discussed musical films of the year comes to the midtown theatre in all the spectacle and glamour of a picture that cost millions to produce A cast of thousands plus the musical artistry of star Jeanette MacDonald all combine to contribute an operatic drama of merit and beauty Miss Mac Donald sings her score beautifully and she is ably assisted by Alan Jones in the romantic musical interludes Filmed in the new sepia tint, the presentation is a pleasure to watch and the entire production, although somewhat lengthy, is a treat to all lovers of music For many months a road attraction, "The Firefly" is offered at the Broadway at popular prices

Kingston "Souls at Sea" For stark terror and electrifying action, the drama at the Kingston is something to witness Taken from an actual maritime case, the play relates a shipwreck at sea with all the resulting horror, fright and madness that overtakes humans in moments of great disaster The sea scenes, especially the moving and realistic action of the shipwreck, are both compelling and staged with a violence seldom seen on the screen And a noteworthy cast of players all live their roles in this melodramatic offering Headed by Gary Cooper, others featured are George Raft, Frances Dee, Harry Carey, Henry Wilcoxon and Robert Barrett.

Orpheum: Same.

New York State's busiest "telephone corner," probably the world's busiest, too, judged from the number of wires underground, is in the crowded mid-town section of Manhattan in New York City.

THE MAKING OF A NEWSPAPER----

---a series of articles to acquaint you with the many phases of the paper you read each evening.

5. Plant to Reader

Printing a newspaper without a circulation department is much the same as producing a play and having no theatre to show it. The paper would be of little value to advertiser or the publishing company which produces it unless a method is devised of getting that paper to the public and providing the publishers with a subscription list.

Just as the other departments used in promotion and those accepted each night by The Freeman employes, are not "accredited" circulation in the eyes of the A. B. C. Should the paper use a premium to promote circulation the A. B. C. would immediately announce this fact to the advertiser and he would consider it in letting his contract, when the present one expires.

The Freeman tries to build its circulation by producing a newspaper, which contains all the news of the territory it covers, plus a number of interesting features of local interest. In addition it tries to get the news first, to enliven it with pictures and to make it readable and in a vein not hilarious but entertaining. In rural areas, where it is sometimes difficult for the subscriber to get into town to renew his subscription, a Freeman representative, Roy Ransom, calls as a subscription nears its end and he offers to renew it. A certain number of promotional advertisements are carried in the paper and the circulation staff is constantly on the alert to satisfy the desires of the potential subscriber and those who already take the paper.

Under the direction of the circulation department and closely tied to it are the mailing and distribution departments, the last places our verbal journey will carry us. We last saw the papers rushing out of the press and being carried away.

Until press time each day the mailing room is a comparatively "dead" spot. Its duty during the early part of the day is concerned with removing the names of subscribers from the stencil files when their subscriptions run out and the cutting of stencils for new subscribers and those who have changed their address. But at press time the staff is greatly increased and everyone works feverishly for a comparatively short time.

The papers are brought to the mailing room in loads of several hundred. Here they are counted into groups and wrapped in large packages, after the subscribers names have been stenciled on, wrapped tightly with rope and placed in groups, so that the truckmen may organize his various runs accordingly A number of papers are also wrapped singly. The papers are divided insofar as those which are sent out of the city, into two groups—those which are directly mailed to the subscriber and those which are sent to newsboys in rural communities and to village newsdealers. These papers, if they are to be received the same day they are published, must necessarily be placed on busses and trains and consequently they are placed on the first load of the truck. Local newsdealers also want the papers early and an attempt is made to get these out among the first to leave the plant.

The Freeman—as far as its circulation—has roughly two distribution divisions, those who subscribe to the company directly by mail or who received the paper from a Freeman newsboy, and those who receive the paper from an independent carrier or through the Kingston News Service, which has its own circulation list and its own boys. There are two focal points in the distribution of the paper, from the company, the main offices on lower Broadway and the branch office on Fair street. From these two points the newsboys receive their papers and distribute them to individual subscription lists The Freeman also keeps a "master list" so that should a boy become sick or a situation develop where the boy would be unable to deliver the paper, The Freeman may send a substitute boy to furnish the subscribers the paper without delay.

We have traveled a long ways since we entered The Freeman to follow the various phases of the "making of a newspaper" and we hope that this explanation of many of the esesntials of producing The Freeman has been of interest. If at any time a group or individual cares to see "in the flesh" what has been described in this and foregoing stories a telephone call or letter to arrange for a tour of the plant will be welcomed

To those of you who contemplate such a trip we hope this verbal journey will make the actual visit more interesting and to those who have already been here or will not come, this story may have explained a local industry which has long served you are tuned to high pitch to produce the paper, so the circulation department is keyed to handle the finished article, furnish the subscribers, and get the paper to them while its contents, advertising and news, are of prime importance. A daily paper seeks to furnish all of its readers (except those at distant points who take the paper to keep informed of home town events) with the latest news of the day in which it is published. Likewise the advertiser wants to get his information to the potential buyer as quickly as possible, and to be able to judge when to advertise the sales and special events he plans. The paper, then, must get to the subscriber at a definite time each day.

Things to be considered in this plan of distribution are train schedules, bus departures, closing time in village post offices, weather conditions, rural routes, and many other pieces to the circulation puzzle, which must be fitted together to make a perfect distribution plan.

Not only does the circulation department have to contend with distribution difficulties, but there is the always important question of an increased circulation, and the holding of the present subscriber. This is accomplished in a number of ways, some based on the merits of the paper alone and others which include certain premiums or gifts. The Freeman, whose circulation is guaranteed by the Audit Bureau of Circulation (an organization not connected with any newspaper, which investigates subscriber lists) has not resorted to premium "comeons" in years and consequently ranks high in its quality circulation in the country.

The Freeman actually prints and distributes over 10,200 copies every day, but those going to the hundred or more correspondents, those sent to advertisers, those

IT'S ODD

But It's Science

By HOWARD W. BLAKESLEE

AP Science Editor

Berkeley, Calif.—Science has gone to the icebox for a new vitamin—called K, which aids in clotting the blood.

Evidence of existence of this vitamin has been growing for some time. The ice-box method of obtaining a more powerful concentration of it was invented by H. J. Almquist of the University of California.

He placed a concentrate of the new vitamin in methanol, a liquid which does not freeze readily. The methanol was then placed in solid carbon dioxide, dry ice, which has a temperature about 105 degrees below zero.

The vitamin K concentrate froze into colorless crystals. These were thawed and again placed in methanol and refrozen. Each time the crystals of vitamin K became a little more pure.

In this way a colorless vitamin K was made which was eight times faster in clotting blood than the original concentrate. Medical scientists are interested in the vitamin for possible uses in hemorrhages.

"Welsh rabbit" is the original and correct designation for that tempting dish which calls for melted cheese, mixed with beer or ale, poured over toast or toasted crackers. Authority for this ruling is the United Brewers Industrial Foundation which, after receiving numerous inquiries from home economists and housewives who are strong on culinary lore but weak on etymology, checked with leading lexicographers, including Dr. Frank Vizetelly of New York, the eminent dictionary editor.

WEST SHOKAN

West Shokan, Dec. 16.—A Court of Honor Scout meeting will be held Friday evening at Colange's Hall. An elaborate program is announced, including motion pictures. The public is cordially welcome to participate.

Mrs. Ruth R. West and the West Shokan school children are rehearsing for their annual Christmas entertainment, which having outgrown the school house seating and stage facilities, will be held Thursday evening, December 23, in Colange's Hall.

Approximately forty persons enjoyed the church social party held last Friday evening. Visitors included Mr. and Mrs. Leonard Ruckert of Shokan. A luncheon was served, followed by singing, the singing of old favorite hymns and popular selections. There was also a well enjoyed talk given by Pastor William Bender in response to the heaping table of surprise Christmas gifts donated to the family. Neither Mr. nor Mrs. Bender had an inkling that the party was being held in their honor which made the surprise and big store of gifts all the more imbued with the beautiful spirit of Christmas.

The preaching service which followed Sunday morning was also well attended. Captain Bender spoke upon a spiritually inspired subject, "God's Eternal Purpose Concerning His Church". The scripture reading was a portion of the thirty-fourth Psalm. Mrs. Chase Davis presided as organist. Providence permitting, service will be held again Sunday at the usual hour. All comers will be assured a most cordial welcome.

The unseasonably mid-winter like weather which has gripped the reservoir country day after day for over a week now as temperatures cautiously moderate brings cloudy skies and indicated snow fall. However and despite the near zero nights the big Ashokan west basin remains open water.

Mr. and Mrs. Edward Avery, of Maple Dell Farm, were busy Kingston shoppers on Tuesday.

The popular West Shokan district school teacher, Mrs. Ruth R. West, is now driving a 1938 Ford V-8 de luxe sedan.

Due to the cold weather the popular community mid-week cottage prayer meetings are being discontinued.

The Homer Sheldon Farm buildings at Acorn Hill are being electrified by local contractor, Donald F. Bishop.

Mr. and Mrs. W. C. Frankle, of north Main street heights are entertaining their grandchild, who accompanied them home from their recent two weeks visit to New York city.

Mr. and Mrs. Martin J. Every, of Traver Hollow, entertained a surprise Sunday afternoon call from their daughter-in-law, Mrs. Edward M. Every, of Kingston.

As reported, the Bushkill school will hold their Christmas tree entertainment on Friday evening, December 24.

Edward Every and Seymour Winnie, Jr., buzzed up a big pile of firewood at Traver Hollow on Monday for Martin J. Every.

Postmaster and Mrs. Arthur Condon, of Palenville, were local afternoon callers on Sunday. The well known couple formerly resideed here.

December 14 marks the second anniversary of the death of John Jordan, West Shokan Heights farmer and one of Olive's best known and esteemed citizens.

Considerable excitement was in vogue in the vicinity of Lester S. Davis' general store, when a passing Grand Union household supply truck from Kingston skidded off the icy macadam, struck a tree and carromed over on its side in the adjoining field. The snow was littered with scattered bottles and boxes, but fortunately the driver escaped serious injuries. Later the damaged truck was removed by a wrecker from the Millard agency in Kingston.

Henry J. Bell, Brodhead Heights "Handy Andy", buzzed a sizeable next season's supply of firewood at the Kerr homestead in Watson Hollow one day recently. "Thede Kerr" and several neighbors gave a helping hand.

Contractor Donald Bishop was employed in Kingston on Monday.

A host of friends from back home in old Olive extended congratulations to "Kip" Donahue of Kingston, whose well known marksmanship brought down a much prized silver fox while hunting Saturday near Cairo.

Francis Whispell gave his neighbor, E. C. Davis, a ready hand on Tuesday, buzz sawing firewood.

Mr. and Mrs. Herbert Hyde and son, Warren, spent Saturday in Kingston.

Mrs Mabel Weidner was numbered among neighborhood matrons attending the Shokan Home Bureau supper, held Monday evening at the Reformed Church. The affair is reported as a pleasing social and monetary success.

Charles Duloff of Boiceville recently was trucking and custom sawing logs from the A. F. Oakes estate.

The customary Wednesday meeting of the Ladies' Aid Society was held in the church basement. There was a healthy attendance among the members and much quilting work accomplished.

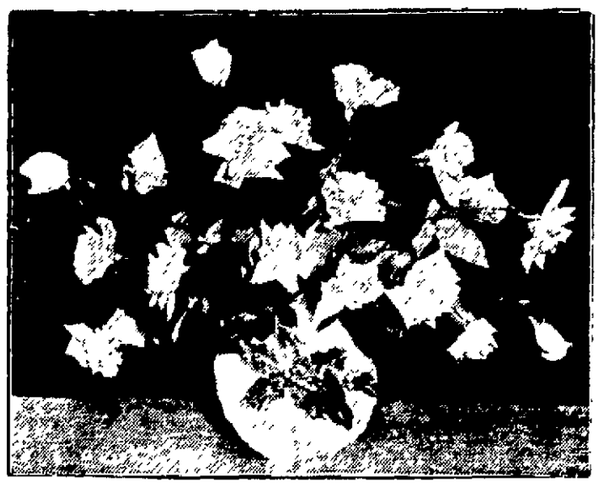
Rose Is Holiday Flower Too! If You Use Them This Way



A Christmas Arrangement of Roses.

Good taste and imagination can accomplish striking results with ordinary materials. This is as true of flowers and their use as it is of m'lady's wardrobe and here myraid beauty preparations.

We are accustomed to the lovely colors and fragrance of roses the year around; they are as familiar to us in June as December, but to appreciate them most, we should display them in harmony with the season which suggests the snow and the holiday festivities

The illustration shows an arrangement in a globe shaped bowl covered with cotton to simulate a snowball. This novel effect is given a special holiday note by the spray of natural holly leaves and scarlet berries.

The rose is without question the best loved flower in America. Every year new varieties of more beautiful colors, lovelier forms, and better keeping qualities are being reproduced by horticulturists who specialize in this queen of flowers.

Since roses are so popular as gift flowers as well as for making our homes more attraactive when we entertain we should know how to arrange them for best effect and so that they will last longer for greater enjoyment.

Arrange roses loosely and naturally in a container of ample size to hold plenty of water. A metal holder in the container is useful to making the roses stay in the right positions. Cut some of the stems shorter than others to give variety and added interest to the arrangement.

Since very warm air and drafts are enemies of cut flowers, because they take up moisture from the tender petals, keep them in as cool a place as possible and away from drafts. Fill the container with fresh water each morning after cutting back the stems half an inch or so with a sharp knife.

WHAT TO DO FOR AILING HOUSE PLANTS

(By The Master Gardener)

This is an excellent time to take stock of your house plants. And if they do not measure up so well—if this one looks droopy and that one is tall and spindly, and another has scant foliage and is at a standstill, then ask yourself these questions:

1. Do I see to it that my plants secure fresh, pure air every day?

This is accomplished by airing the room thoroughly daily, being careful to open a window or door, however, that will not allow a direct draft to blow on the plants.

2. Is the temperature too high?

This is unhealthful for your family as well as your plants. A temperature above 70 degrees is not conducive to good plant growth.

3. Am I using some means of maintaining a moist, humid atmosphere?

This, too, is essential for human health as well as that of plants. There are now many humidifiers on the market, reasonably priced. Recently I noticed one advertised by a leading department store that fitted directly on top of a steam radiator, just as do the ordinary radiator tops; another type slips in between the sections of the radiator; others hook on the back. If you do not have steam heat, place open vessels of water about the house. Or use the new water mats below your pots. Or another method is to place the pots on a bed of pebbles or sand so that water will be evaporating at all times about the pots, yet the pebbles or sand will raise the pots above water level so the pots do not stand in the water.

4. Am I feeding my plants, and, in doing so, giving them a complete balanced diet

It is most necessary that you give your plants a complete balanced plant food, since the small amount of plant food originally in the soil soon becomes exhausted. Buy a complete balanced plant food and feed in accordance with the directions on the package.

5. Do I keep my plants free of dust and grime?

Keep the foliage clean. The leaf is the plant's breathing apparatus and the pores must not be stopped up. With the smooth fleshy leaved plants, this can be accomplished by wiping with a damp cloth. Other plants, such as ferns and geraniums, can be lightly sprayed with water frequently. Pick off all dead and damaged leaves and burn.

6. Do I scan the plants regularly for insects?

Watch for insects. Coleus is especially susceptible to mealy bug. Plant lice (aphis) are active on cyclamen and fuchsia. Ferns and ivy are subject to scale. The red spider, a small almost invisible insect whose presence can be detected by the tiny webs it spins, is apt to attack cyclamen, as well as a number of other plants; it thrives in a warm, dry atmosphere. If your plants are infested with any insect, ask your florist to suggest a suitable remedy. There are now many reliable all-purpose sprays on the market

7. Do I water my house plants properly?

Watering must be done with discretion. Many conditions—size of pot, type of plant, humidity of the atmosphere—affect the amount of water a plant requires. Observe your plants; water only when the topsoil appears dry and crumbly, and when you do water, soak thoroughly. Certain plants should be kept on the dry side such as geraniums; others on the moist side, such as the umbrella plant. Also, during dark periods, plants do not require so much water as when there is a great deal of sunshine. By a little careful observation you can soon tell when to water your plants, and how much water is required.

Noted Pastor Dies

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—The Rev. Pryor McNeill Grant, rector of Christ Church, Riverdale, and internationally known for his religious work with boys, died yesterday. He was 43 years old.

Mr. Grant, a native of Birmingham, Ala., was associated for many years with "Toc H", an international religious organization founded during the World War as a rest house and place of inspiration for British soldiers. Later he became an associate padre in charge of the organization's activities in the United States.

The funeral will be held at Christ Church tomorrow with burial in Birmingham.

HOW JUNIOR GOT A NEW BICYCLE FOR CHRISTMAS . . . .

Junior wanted a bicycle more than anything else in the world, but Junior's Dad couldn't see how he could spare the money a really good bicycle would cost. Then Junior's mother got a wonderful idea . .

SHE went up to the store room and selected an old baby carriage and stove she didn't need . . . she put a Classified ad in The Freeman to sell them . . . and she got enough cash to get Junior the very bike he wanted! Everybody can get extra Christmas money the same way.

Land Title Case in Supreme Court

An action to straighten out title to land bordering the Esopus creek at Saugerties was taken up in Supreme Court Thursday afternoon. LeRoy and Harold Mead Palmer brought an action against Susan Shaw to clear title to land which the plaintiffs had bought on the Esopus creek below the stone dock, a parcel of land formerly owned by the Saugerties Brick Company.

A number of years ago John Maxwell bought the land at tax sale but before th deed was filed it was lost. Since then there have been parcels sold off. The copy of the tax deed was on file with the state department and prior to offering it to complete the chain of title, testimony was taken. Benjamin Rowe appeared for the plaintiffs.

All jurors have been excused for the term and Justice Foster will return Wednesday afternoon to take their report of the grand jury.

Is Left Port Ewen Property

New York, Dec. 16 (Special)—A house and its furnishings at Hoyt street, Port Ewen, is left to Annie Barton of Brooklyn by her aunt, Mrs. Mary A. Quigley, under the terms of a will filed for probate in Surrogates Court today. Miss Barton also receives $1,000 in cash, furnishings from the decedent's Brooklyn home, and one-half of the residual estate.

Mrs. Quigley died October 29, at her home, 458 Sixty-third street, Brooklyn. Her estate was estimated at $1,500 real and $7,000 personal property.

Molly Roth of Brooklyn receives the remainder of the residue after the payment of several specific bequests of $50 each to nieces and nephews.

In her will Mrs. Quigley directed that she be buried in Kingston.

There's an argument now as to whether men or women are better bridge players, but we'll cross that bridge when we come to it.

Grand Jury Will Report Dec. 22

District Attorney Cleon B. Murray stated Thursday afternoon that the work of the present grand jury would be completed and a complete report made to Justice Sydney F. Foster on Wednesday afternoon at 2 o'clock. A partial report was made Monday when two sealed indictments were handed up and the grand jurors then resumed their investigations.

The transmission of weather information by radioteletypewriter has been developed to a point where reliability equal to that obtained with land wire installations has been attained.

Big Advance In Retail Sales

In yesterday's trading, with 1,030,000 shares changing hands, stocks generally were inclined to advance and on the Dow-Jones averages all classes showed a gain for the day. Industrials were up 1.56 points, to 125.75; rails advanced 0.30, to 31.68; utilities were ahead 0.11 point, to 21.57. Corporate bonds averaged lower, but Governments showed firm tendencies. The London market was firm, with Paris and Amsterdam irregular. The U. S. was believed to have entered the London silver market.

There were further indications that the cotton market is beginning to react from the low sales level of recent months. In Worth Stret there was some mark-up in prices as total sales in cotton goods were reported to have reached 10,000,000 to 15,000,000 yards.

A leading smelter reduced the price of copper to 10.125 cents a pound and the price of lead was cut to 4.75 cents.

Seen as part of the move by leading automobile companies to lower the price of raw materials in effort to cut the price of automobiles was the reported cut in the price of cadmium from $1.60 to $1.35 cents a pound. Ford is one of the largest users of this metal and the cut in price was by an interest known to be one of the Ford suppliers.

With a heavy bank of unfilled orders aircraft makers see 1938 equaling if not exceeding the present year, which showed record business. Present indications are that the aggregate deliveries of planes, engines and parts for 1937 will amount to perhaps as much as $115,000,000. This will represent an increase of around 45 per cent over 1936 deliveries.

The Maritime Commission has asked bids for construction of 12 cargo vessels, estimated to cost between $18,000,000 and $23,000,000; largest individual peace time order for merchant cargo tonnage ever placed in this country.

An encouraging advance in retail sales during the past week is reported by New York department stores. Aggregate business of 13 large stores in the metropolitan area for the week ended December 14 were 4.8 per cent above those of the same week in 1936. A mark-down of merchandise in the principal departments apparently brought out the buyers, an improvement in staple purchases being particularly noted. Providing there is not a slump in sales indications now are that the most important retail units will end the year with inventories at satisfactory levels. In Chicago reports from the city's largest and best shops show like improvement, with lower-priced merchandise moving at the best rate and some important stores expect to close the year with stocks lower than a year ago.

Three Woolworth stores in New York city were closed by strike of CIO employes yesterday, union is threatening to call strikes at all the 124 stores in the city. Dearborn police yesterday arrested about 100 UAW members for attempting to distribute literature at the Ford River Rouge plant.

Treasury Receipts

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP)—The position of the Treasury on December 15: Receipts, $875,110,328.01 (); expenditures, $325,304,130.42 (); balance, $3,203,361,143.69; customs receipts for the month $15,616,010.66. Receipts for the fiscal year (since July 1), $2,722,101,807.46; expenditures, $3,410,646,213.77, including $941,042,998.36 of emergency expenditures; excess of expenditures, $688,544,406.31; gross debt, $37,562,835,918.74, an increase of $513,592,237.83 above the previous day; gold assets, $12,764,893,289.85, including $1,232,619,939.55 of inactive gold. *) unusually large because of quarterly debt refinancing transactions.

New York, Dec. 17 (AP).—Stocks ran up against a little more profit and tax selling in today's market and leading issues fell back fractions to a point.

The strong steels of yesterday were among the first to slip. Motors and coppers also gave ground without a great deal of resistance. Gold mines and an assortment of specialties, however, did better. Dome made another new year's high. Homestake and McIntyre edged forward.

Failing to recover to any appreciable extent were U. S. Steel, Bethlehem, General Motors, Chrysler, General Electric, International Harvester, Anaconda, Cerro De Pasco, Montgomery and Amerada.

Higher were Westinghouse, Deere, Owens-Illinois, Oliver Farm, American Can and Allis Chalmers.

Strength of U. S. government securities helped the bond market. Commodities were uneven.

Promise to Ulster On New York Code

Assembly until later in the afternoon, to await Senate action.

Conway-Moffat Tilt

Just before final adjournment in the Assembly Thursday night, a brief altercation took place between Assemblyman Conway and Assemblyman Abbot Low Moffat, Republican of New York. Moffat, in an explanation of the code on the floor of the Assembly, declared that opposition to the bill seemed to be coming from persons who were objecting not to what is in the code, but what is already in the charter, from persons over-interpreting the measure and from those objecting to "over-phraseology". This last group, Moffat asserted, he believed to be insincere in their opposition.

Assemblyman Conway then asserted:

"I am sure my friend, Mr. Moffat, does not charge the representatives of Ulster county are insincere in their opposition to the bill. I will continue to work on the bill every waking hour, as I have continued to do since last Tuesday, and as soon as I can get this ironed out I will be glad to cooperate in every way with the city of New York to obtain this legislation which we all agree is necessary".

More than 10 of the objections raised by Assemblyman Conway to the bill, have been erased already, the Ulster county legislator said.

Backing the Ulster county legislators in both Senate and Assembly, in their efforts to block immediate passage of the bill until the desired amendments are made, are Senators Pliny W. Williamson, Republican of Scarsdale and James A. Garrity, Democrat of Yonkers, and four Westchester county assemblymen, in which county New York City also has large holdings of property used in connection with its municipal water supply.

Senator Garrity has expressed himself as optimistic of the offering and adoption of the requested amendments. He said:

"I am assured by Reuben Lazarus, on behalf of Mayor LaGuardia, that the new portion of the code relative to aqueducts, will be changed or deleted from the bill. I have his word of honor, given to me personally."

Mr. Lazarus, after listening to the concluding debate in the Assembly last night, said:

"In my 25 years here, I have never seen so much misunderstanding. This is the most misunderstood bill ever before the legislature."

New York, Dec. 17 (AP).—Federal Judge John C. Knox today ordered all operations on the New York, Westchester and Boston Railroad discontinued on December 31. Zebus of Various Sizes

In India zebus are in practically all sizes. Some are as small as dogs; some are larger than any other cattle. There are all sorts of colors, from a cream to a gray-blue. But the most-prized zebus are white. These animals are sacred to Hindus, cannot be harmed, must be worshiped at all times. White zebus sprawl all over the sidewalks in Indian cities. Hindus never disturb them, passing in the gutter after bowing.

Off to Russia to the great annual fair of Nijni Nogorod in Moscow goes the finest gem turquoise in the world. Mined in the northeastern part of Persia between Nishipoor and Mished, it is partly cut and then carried by Persian merchants to Russia.

4 Men Held in Death of Girl at Pittsburgh Hotel

Pittsburgh, Dec. 17 (AP)—Four men, delegates to the First National Convention of the Steel Workers Organizing Committee, were ordered held today while authorities investigated the death of a woman in a hotel here.

A maid found the unclothed body of Rose Ault, 30-year-old divorcee, in a room late yesterday, but detectives kept the fact secret for hours while they investigated.

Inspector of Detectives Walter Monaghan said the four men were detained upon instructions of Coroner W. J. McGregor on technical charges of murder pending an inquest. The charges were not formally filed.

District Attorney Andrew T. Park said the measure was chiefly precautionary, adding:

"As a matter of fact, my thought would be that it is not a murder case. But I advised the coroner to hold all four of them on a charge of murder until we find the cause of death. The preliminary autopsy showed no evidence of violence."

Inspector Monaghan said Jacob Zelkind and Morris Engaold, both of Brooklyn, were held here and that Louis H. Green of Brooklyn, and Fred A. Odenwald of Ozone Park, L. I., were detained in New York.

Close Search for Alcatraz Convicts

San Francisco, Dec. 17 (AP)—Heavy shore patrols and Federal and police boats searched the waters of San Francisco Bay today for two desperate criminals who escaped from Alcatraz Island's "escape proof" Federal penitentiary under cover of a dense fog.

Officials expected to find their bodies.

There was only one chance in a thousand, authorities agreed, that Ralph Roe, 29-year-old bank robber from Duncan, Okla., and Theodore Cole, 25-year-old kidnaper of Stroud, Okla., still lived.

During a half hour between regular counting of prisoners yesterday afternoon the pair broke two panes of glass in a window and escaped from the machine shop where they worked. Hidden from tower guards by the densest fog of the year, they reached the outside wire fence where they jimmied a gate.

"The cliff beyond the gate is almost sheer," said Warden James A. Johnston. "There is about a 20-foot fall but it could be made in a jump or two."

After reaching rocks at the base of the cliff, officials said, the pair hid in caves on the island, plunged into the powerful ebb tide in an attempt to swim the mile and a quarter to San Francisco, or slid into the water to make a rendezvous with a confederate's boat screened from the 12-acre rock by the fog.

To Exhume 4 Bodies

Knoxville, Tenn., Dec. 17 (AP)—The charred bodies of four victims of a tenement house fire will be taken from their graves today by investigators seeking the cause of the tragedy. Coroner John Scott declared he would obtain a court order to exhume the bodies of Mrs. McKinley Conatser and her three children for an examination to determine whether or not there were any indications of violence or foul play. Nine persons died in flames that swept the two-story frame building in the early morning of December 9.

20 Persons Hurt As Michigan Train Overturns Today

Detroit, Dec. 17 (AP).—Twenty persons were injured today when three passenger coaches of a Pere Marquette train bound from Detroit to Bay City, Mich., overturned 16 miles west of Detroit.

The passengers, including several college students en route home for the Christmas holidays, were tossed about as the coaches toppled down a five-foot embankment.

The injured were carried 1,000 feet over the ice-covered ties to ambulances which took them to Redford Receiving Hospital, Detroit.

Allan Huston of Saginaw, Mich., the engineer, said he "suddenly felt the train dragging," and said a "spread rail" might have caused the accident.

W. H. Wallace, Saginaw superintendent of the railroad who was a passenger, said the rear wheels of the locomotive tender jumped the track. A freight car and mail car followed, and the passenger coaches plunged off the right of way.

"When the tender jumped," Wallace said, "it started the whole train in a slide to the right, and the track went with it."

A section of rail was carried hundreds of feet by the train which was traveling 50 miles an hour.

Adopts Budget

The board adopted its budget for 1938 amounting to $88,575., which is about $700 more than this year, due to the increase in salaries given the four patrolmen who were elevated to the positions of sergeant.

The board voted Chief Wood a vote of thanks for his efficient handling of the affairs of the department which had resulted in the department closing the year with a surplus.

The matter of obtaining a gun cabinet in which to keep the firearms of the police department was referred to Commissioner Disch and Chief Wood.

Chief of Police J. Allen Wood reported a total of 61 arrests made here in November of which number, four were women. The largest number of arrests were for public intoxication, 26 in all, with 10 arrests for disorderly conduct. There were six arrests for violations of the traffic law, and the other arrests were for scattered offenses.

Bard College Loud In Praise of Local Theatre Group

Thursday evening at Bard College, Annandale-on-Hudson, the Ulster County Theatre won the same unstinted acclaim with its presentation of "Give Us This Day" that it received last week at Kingston High School.

"Give Us This Day," by Howard E. Koch, playwright and resident of this city, was the theatre group's first presentation. The Bard College performance was the second of the initial play and the audience, comprised of first-nighters and those more intimately connected with the theatre, was extremely critical. At the last curtain several calls greeted the cast and sponsors of the college theatre said the presentation was one of the finest they ever had witnessed.

Professor Morrison, in charge of dramatics at Bard College, as well as other members of the faculty and those in the audience, informed the players that the presentation really thrilled them.

"No public can refuse to support such natural talent," Professor Morrison said, "and your aim of a regional theatre is not something to dream about. It is an established fact. Nothing remains but your ambition to own and control your own playhouse. That in comparison to what you have achieved already is almost insignificant."

Howard Koch, veteran of scores of Broadway rehearsals, was equally full of praise for the players. "I have never before worked with more sincere and enthusiastic performers. You are professional without being rubber-stamped as such. I count the last six weeks we have spent in rehearsals as among some of the happiest in my lifetime."

Outstanding last night, as at the performance a week ago in this city, were Shirley Silverman, Bill Scheniman, David Pennington, John Burgevin, Marie Lyons, Marianne Price, Harland Wilbur, Gertrude Heiselman, Marion Byrne, Jansen Fowler, and two children, Constance Treadwell and Jackie Finch.

The play was directed by Howard Koch, assisted by Mrs. Ann Herzog Olson. The outstanding settings were built by Albert Milliken.

The action of the play opens with a prologue in the home of William and Rachel Jordan in the West 70's New York city. The grandfather has died and the heirs have descended upon the house awaiting the distribution of the money. They are disappointed because it has been left to the grandmother.

The body of the play finds the heirs living a monotonous sitting around, their own lives in abeyance, waiting for the money to come from Rachel Jordan. The old lady lives a long, time, however, and in the meantime the characters of all deteriorate. Jane Jordan (played remarkably by Marie Lyons) is saved from much of the living death by Wes Carnwright, garageman, who becomes Jane's lover. The lives of Mark Jordan and Miriam Brandon (David Pennington and Shirley Silverman) are frustrated by the waiting, because Mark feels that he cannot break the hold his grandmother has over him. In the end the old lady leaves all her money to Mark. When the greed of the family surges over him, he decides to end his own life and to give all the wealth to the other heirs.

The epilogue, particularly beautiful from the standpoint of stage setting and emotional summation, depicts the broken father of Mark Jordan (John Burgevin) at a country church where Wes and Jane have taken their baby to be baptized, thus commencing the cycle of the family over again. As the curtain closes Miriam stands praying to her dead lover and that the lives of those consecrated that day in the church may be carried to fulfillment.

The Ulster County Theatre Association has been formed less than a year. In that time it has attained the status of a professional group and the support accorded in the county and city attests to the fact that the movement will endure.

Anointed With Syrup

Mrs. Maarguerite Cupples, 22, (above) told a Boston court her hair was cut off and her head covered with a coat of syrup and feathers after she and a companion had "been out with" two married men. One of the men, his wife and the wife of the second man all were convicted of assault.

Plans Progress For Society of City Aldermen

Early in January it is planned to call a meeting at the city hall for the purpose of forming the Kingston Aldermanic Association, similar to the Ulster County Supervisors' Association, and the committee in charge of forming the association, Alderman Joseph Epstein, Alderman Eugene Cornwell and City Clerk E. J. Dempsey, have been busy going over the old record of the common council and have found that there are 93 men still living who have served as aldermen and are eligible for membership in the new organization. In that number, of course, is included the present membership of the council as well as the five newly elected aldermen.

The appointing of the committee to consider the organization was made at the get together dinner and meeting held recently in the Elks Club at which time Alderman-at-large John J. Schwenk appointed the committee to draft plans for the proposed organization.

All of the men who are eligible for membership will receive a notice through the mails a few days before the meeting is called.

Legion Auxiliary Held Meeting

The American Legion Auxiliary, Kingston Unit, No. 150, Department of New York, held its regular monthly meeting last evening, Thursday, December 16, in the Memorial Building on West O'Reilly street.

Mrs. Christopher Roche presided, and opened the meeting with the salute to the flag and the singing of the National Anthem. A reading of the minutes of the November meeting disclosed the net receipts of the Auxiliary's participation in the Victory Ball to be $100.59, a check for which was promptly dispatched to the treasurer of the post.

The welfare chairman, Mrs. Jane McManus, reported groceries, clothing and household articles, also clothing for two children having been given during the past month, amounting to $19.99. Also, arrangements are being made to provide a happier Christmas to needy families specifically known. A check for $5 was sent to the Mayor's Christmas Fund that is to make Christmas merry for children throughout the city. Miss Margaret McManus, Rehabilitation chairman, reported a check for $12.50 sent to the Castle Point Hospital for special Christmas activities, also six cartons of cigarettes.

Mrs. Conrad Heiselman read section one in the first of a "Get acquainted with the Constitution" series.

Mrs. Harry Whitney, one of the clothing committee of the Mayor's Christmas Committee, reported preparations going on apace, so that the sweaters and mittens will be ready for packing on Monday next. Members of the auxiliary are asked to give what they can of their time in assisting the general committee to assemble the gifts in the Municipal Auditorium next week. On Saturday afternoon members are asked to meet at the Memorial Building at 2 o'clock to wrap the homemade cookies to be taken to U. S. Government Hospital, No 98, at Castle Point, on Sunday. The Third and Ninth Districts will meet in the reception room of the hospital at 2.30 p. m. on Sunday to make their annual Christmas visit to the disabled veteran patients there.

A communication from Veterans' Mt. Camp at Tupper Lake was read by the secretary. It was voted to send a check contributing to the cost of installing a new water system there. Mrs. Raymond Woodard radio and publicity chairman, spoke regarding the essay contest being sponsored by the American Legion Auxiliary, Department of New York, in the interest of Americanism.

Mrs. Edward Luedtke reported a growing membership in the Junior organization. These girls are making cookies, too, for the hospitalized veterans; collecting coupons and other auxiliary aids. Their next meeting will have a special recreational feature.

Much interest is shown in the beautiful crocheted lace bedspread that is to be disposed of at the January meeting. Requiring months of painstaking effort, this intricate and handsome spread is the handiwork of the president, Mrs. Christopher Roche.

Sunshine committee reported Mrs. Thomas Hickey as recovering nicely at home after a recent session in the Albany Hospital. Mrs. Katherine Voigt is still confined to her bed at the Hackett Sanitarium.

At the close of the business session, Mrs. Joseph A Sills, doubling very successfully as Santa Claus, presented each member with Christmas gifts. Each recipient was required to "earn" their packages by "speaking a piece" and much merriment resulted from the failure to accurately memorize nursery rhymes.

Following the adjournment, refreshments were served.

Keefe House In November Issue of Leading Magazine

Charles S. Keefe, A. I. A., of 258 Lucas avenue, is represented in the November issue of "House Beautiful", with a story and photographs of an early American style house designed by him for Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bellows in New Canaan, Conn.

The story, which carries seven photographs, illustrates exterior and interior features of the dwellings.

The magazine says in part: "Mr. and Mrs. Bellows' house is in New Canaan, Conn., but its original was built on Cape Cod and bought some time ago by Mrs. Bellows. This Connecticut house reproduces the original in its central section; the architect, Charles S. Keefe, has added wings for the service side of the house and for the big living room, which is entered through the little fenced garden at the left of the house. It is a perfect country house, for it can be made snug against winter winds or thrown open to summer sunshine; and the view across the valley to the neighboring ridge of hills is enchanting, whatever the season."

Outstanding features of the house are the spatter-dashed floors, which in colonial times was the method substituted for rugs; the fireplace and the paneled wall came from a meeting house in Providence which was built in 1690. In the Bellows house it was used as one wall of the downstairs bedroom and painted lemon yellow. The floors are of wide oak boards.

Exterior features include a flagged terrace overlooking the garden, which is planted in keeping with the early American style of the house; a sweeping lawn and shelter and privacy for the owners.

Springfield, Mass., Dec. 17 (AP)—Mrs. Ethel M. Bruns, 27, of Woodhaven, N. Y., was awarded $2,200 damages yesterday for personal injuries suffered in an automobile accident during her wedding trip. Her husband, Frederick Bruns of Corona, N. Y., was killed.

In addition to Mrs. Bruns' award, a superior court jury here directed payment of two sums totalling $9,500 to her husband's estate.

It was alleged that the defendant, Bradley E. Stafford of Springfield, driver of the other car, was responsible for the crash at Westfield July 28, 1934.

New York, Dec. 17 (AP) — A transcript of testimony that "courtesy cards," issued to contributors to police funds, would win "a break" for traffic law violators in New Jersey, went to Governor Harold G. Hoffman today. The testimony was offered yesterday in special sessions by Patrolman Charles H. Wellman, of the West New York, N. J., police force. Justice James E. McDonald ordered the transcript sent to the New Jersey governor with the comment that he considered the practice "a distinct breaking of the law."

Japan Potential Foe Of U. S.

themselves on meeting another; in Russia, where a person on trial will accuse himself more vigorously than the prosecutor," it was the speaker's opinion that news stories to the occidental mind coming from the Asiatic countries were often as illogical as "Alice in Wonderland."

China's Position

In China, Mr. Duffield recounted, its population was 350,000,000, or "about one fourth of the entire population of the globe," and that until recent years it had been a non-militaristic nation which abhorred war, one that was concerned with philosophy. He declared its councils were at first divided, the national government at Nanking being a bitter enemy to the communistic elements in the interior. When Japan began carving out sections of China and setting up puppet states, a "rude awakening came" to the Chinese. These people learned that nothing except words came from the League of Nations and that as Napoleon said, "God is on the side of the strongest battalions." China then, said the speaker, saw the need of unity, and so the two sides buried their differences in a common cause—"that of defense against their deadliest enemy, Japan."

In Japan meantime, continued Mr. Duffield, the "rising egotism of the military leaders had led them to a vision of a completely conquered Asia, including China, Siberia, Philippines, British and Dutch possessions in Asiatic waters. These military leaders, he declared, were not responsible to the government. Last July, the military after observing the growing unity in China, decided to act, and upon the pretext of a border insult "launched its legions."

Who will win the war? queried the speaker. It was his contention that Japan with its mighty military machine, but inferior manpower, would win almost every pitched battle, "but if the Chinese constantly retreat drawing the Japanese away from their bases of supplies and necessitating the establishing of long lines of communications, the former may well be the victor. You remember Napoleon and his army of 600,000 trained soldiers in his campaign against Russia. He won every pitched battle, yet weather and distance defeated him, and he returned with but 16,000 men."

Russia Has Its Interests

Russia, thought the speaker, is also interested in this war. The Soviet has the largest army in Europe, 4,500 tanks, more than twice as many airplanes than any European nation and "the most daring aviators in the world." Mr. Duffield suggested that the military of both Russia and Japan would like to see war, the latter because they believe they can win, and the former because they believe that they would be able to establish their loyality and escape the widespread "blood purge". However, the speaker stated, Germany might enter the conflict if Russia declared war, and thus the Soviet would be "between the steel jaws of a trap."

Turning to the Japanese attitude toward the United States, Mr. Duffield, saw Japanese hopes to settle a number of scores. "Yet any attack on the United States would end disastrously for Japan," said the speaker, because of greater resources in this country and the almost certain aid of other nations such as the English and Dutch, who would not side with this country because of any sense of duty but because their own far flung possessions in the Pacific would be endangered. "Such aid," he declared, "would of course end the conflict the more quickly."

Japan's grievences against this country began with America's blocking of the realization of the 21 points demanded of China; continued with the refusal of the United States to grant equality of Japanese subjects in the writing of the Versailles Treaty; rose to a pitch when Japanese were excluded under the 1929 immigration act, and culminated with Japanese refusal to continue the 5-5-3 Naval Treaty, resulting in an armament race. "The United States can build five battleships for every one Japan constructs," said Mr. Duffield, "but the Japanese rely on our easy going nature and sense of security".

"In conclusion, let me say that the United States should form no entangling alliances. We are not the world's policeman. Yet we should be a good neighbor to the world. After all, the best friends of the United States are the Atlantic and the Pacific oceans."

COPS FLAY UPSY-DAISY WITH GIRL PICKET

Nobody seemed to be taking the situation very seriously when Kansas City police, breaking up a picket line at the Ford assembly plant, took this woman picket away from the scene in a big way. Police arrested scores of pickets on the ground that a bonafide strike was not in progress at the plant.

STEEL WORKERS IN BIG PARADE FOR LEWIS

Wildly cheering delegates to the steel workers' convention in Pittsburgh, sponsored by the CIO, staged a 25-minute demonstration reminiscent of political conventions as a greeting to John L. Finger Nail Fashions

Finger nails have long been linked with social standing. In China, long pointed shapes at one time signified high rank or birth while in ancient Egypt and other Oriental countries dyed finger nails set royalty apart from the commoners. Among Americans of refinement, contour, length, and coloring are largely matters of taste.

Mnaufacturers have done their part in producing washable toys, but once the toys leave their hands it's up to mothers to complete the sanitary circle by making sure they are rid of the germs that cling to the surface of soiled rattles and wooly lambs.

Referendum Not Consistent

Washington, Dec. 17 (AP)—President Roosevelt told a press conference today he did not believe a referendum on war was consistent with a representative form of government.

Asked by a woman reporter if he thought a referendum, requiring a public vote before the nation could go to war, was consistent with the United States form of government, the President said the easiest way to answer that was to just say no and stop right there.

A petition circulated by Representative Ludlow (D.-Ind.) proposing submission a constitutional amendment for a war referendum was signed by 218 house members, forcing the house to order a vote on the proposal.

The President had no comment on the Japanese bombing of the American Gunboat Panay, referring questioners to the State Department.

So You're Going To Build A House

In Picking A Lot, Look To The Future

Second in a series.

By SIGRID ARNE

AP Feature Service Writer

Washington — You've decided it's as cheap to build a house of your own as to keep on paying rent.

(You need only 20 per cent of the price to start on—$1,200 on a $6,000 house—because you can borrow the other 80 per cent under the Federal Housing Administration's insurance plan. And congress is thinking of reducing that down payment to 10 per cent.)

First you must find the lot.

But do you know what to look for when you're picking a lot? The FHA won't insure your loan unless it agrees that the lot is a good investment.

Watch These Up.

Here are some things to watch:

1. Get into a part of town where your kind of people live. If you're a teacher or small business man, you'll be happier in a white-collar neighborhood.

2. See that there are good schools and stores not too far away. See that the street cars or buses (if you must ride them) take you easily to work.

3. Figure out the taxes and special assessments in the neighborhood and ask at city hall whether the city is figuring on a tax increase in that area.

4. Be sure the lot is in a section that won't be invaded by factories or store buildings (or otherwise the value of your home will go down), and that you're safe from floods.

5. Remember there's a trend toward bigger lots, just in case you should want to sell ten years hence. Your lot should be at least 50 by 120 feet, says FHA, for a $6,000-house.

6. The area should be zoned so that it will remain the kind of a home neighborhood it was when it caught your eye.

7. Be sure the water supply is pure and that there's an adequate sanitary system. If you're living outside town, where septic tanks have to be used, there should be no more than two to an acre.

8. See that the real estate company developing your neighborhood, if you've chosen a new subdivision, is financially sound, so they will finish the work. Otherwise you'll be faced with assessments to finish sewers and string power lines.

Then think about yourself, whether you can carry the monthly payments.

"Don't buy a house outside your means," FHA warns.

The price of the house should equal no more than two or two-and-a-half times your yearly income. The best way to figure, says FHA, is how much it will cost a month. That figure should include payment on the house, interest, taxes and insurance. It should be no more than a fifth to a fourth of your monthly income.

Now For The Loan.

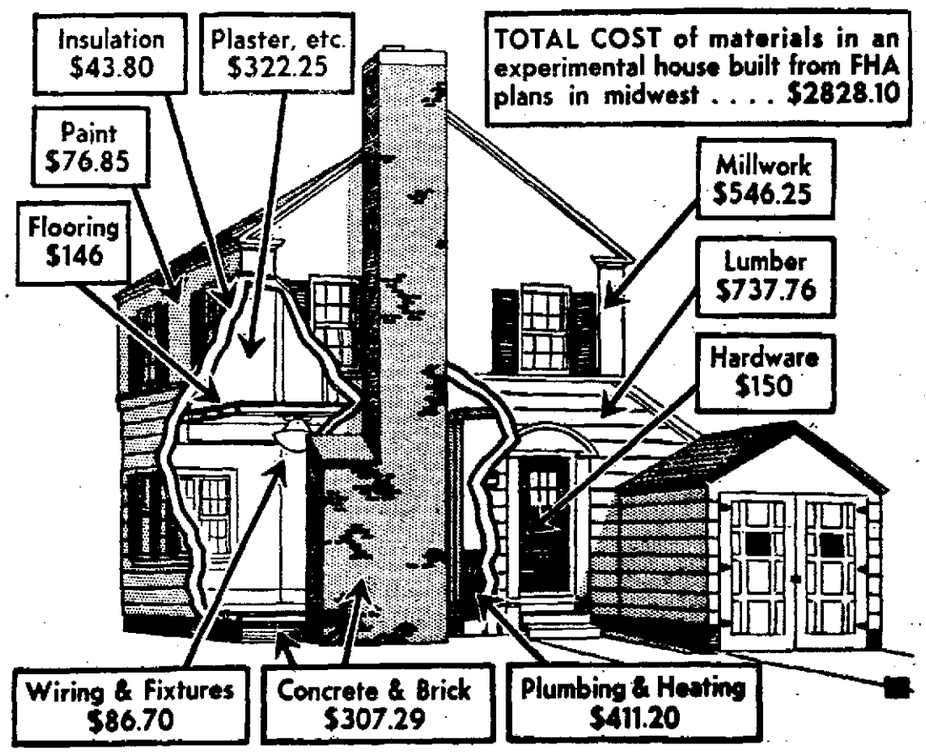
Now go to a lending institution; you can pick an approved one from the list issued by FHA. The company goes into your financial and working history. If it decides you are a responsible borrower, and FHA approves your plans, the company makes the loan and FHA insures it.

An FHA investigator (if your plans go through) will visit the house while it's building to see if the correct materials and workmanship are going into it. If FHA won't insure your mortgage and you still build, it would be wise to pay for inspections by their man anyway—to be sure that no hidden costs are written into the price of the house.

And about the mortgage:

The single mortgage that matures over a long period is best, says FHA. Its loans amortize over terms up to 20 years. If you give first and second mortgages, there probably will be renewal fees to pay every three or five years; and that upsets a smoothly operating budget.

Tomorrow: Don't Get Gyped.



HERE'S WHERE YOUR MONEY GOES

If you want to build a house which is to cost about $6,000, pencil these figures on the back of an envelope:

Improved lot	$ 350
Plans	250
Net construction cost	4,171
Contrator's overhead and profit	500
Construction loan	250
Landscaping, walks, etc.	150
	$5,671

This gives you $238 leeway, which you probably will need. Things you haven't thought of have a way of turning up.

The figures above are based on the cost of an experimental house built in the midwest from FHA plans.

Coaches Would Slash Po'keepsie Race to 3 Miles

By DREW MIDDLETON.

New York, Dec. 17 (AP).—The four-mile varsity race of the Poughkeepsie regatta, long the blue ribbon event of American College rowing, is again on trial, this time with the rowing coaches of the east arrayed against it.

The Rowing Coaches Association passed a resolution at a meeting recently calling on member coaches to suggest to their graduate managers that the length of the race be cut to three miles.

James A. Ten Eyck, coach of Syracuse and president of the association, said absence of University of Pennsylvania crews from the annual regatta of the Intercollegiate Rowing Association, of which Pennsylvania is a charter member, started sentiment for the move.

"We felt the length of the race should be changed so that Pennsylvania can come back into the regatta, where it belongs," Ten Eyck declared.

Considerable discussion preceded the adoption of the resolution.

The unbroken string of triumphs for Pacific coast crews in the race since 1931 may have had something to do with the decision. California Eights won the race in 1932, 1934 and 1935, and Washington swept all three races, freshman, junior varsity and varsity, in 1936 and 1937.

Better Advantage.

Many eastern coaches feel that superior training conditions on the Pacific coast give western eights better preparation for the varsity race. Pennsylvania withdrew last winter because authorities felt Rusty Callow, Penn coach, could not condition his varsity eight for the four-mile run on the Schuylkill river's training course.

A. Ulbrickson, University of Washington coach, who directed the Huskies' sweep in the last two regattas, said in Seattle the reduction would be "immaterial" to him.

"Washington, California and Wisconsin are not members of the Rowing Association, and only compete on the invitation, so we wouldn't have anything to say about the racing distance," Ulbrickson said.

The coaches' resolution is the first move against the length of the race since 1925, when the event was restored to its traditional length of four miles.

The race was held over the Poughkeepsie four-mile course on the Hudson river from 1895 to 1916 with the exception of 1898, when it was rowed over three miles at Saratoga Lake, N. Y. When after a three-year hiatus because of the war the regatta was renewed in 1920, it was held on Lake Cayuga at Ithaca, N. Y., over a two-mile course. The varsities rowed three miles at Poughkeepsie from 1921 to 1925, when the race was restored to four miles.

The coaches adopted two other resolutions which will be submitted to graduate managers. One called for the formal drawing of lanes for all regattas in the presence of contesting crews and the other for the standarization of course markers.

Twice champions of the mid-Hudson circuit, the Hospital pinsters now hold a five game lead in the league. The club is led by Brown Hunter, spectacular anchor, who is averaging close to the 195 mark, Emil Garbarino, Red Leeson, Tip Sheldon and Art Gunderson.

State Hospital trimmed the locals by more than 200 pins last week and the locals are anxious to gain revenge. Rolling for Kingston will be Fred Rice, Randy Kelder, Larry Peterson, Ed Whitaker, Marty Kellenberger and Charles Tiano.

Sunday night at 8 o'clock, the Crystal Beauty Ladies oppose the Millbrook Ladies in the return match of the home and home series. The local lineup is made up of Adelaide Gilbert, captain Evelyn Dolson, "Toots" Meier, Sally Keuhn, Thelma Clearwater and Helen Peters.

Matches with Catskill, New Rochelle and other Badminton clubs will be played throughout the season.

Alabama Pledged to Carry on Victory

Tuscaloosa, Ala., Dec. 17 (AP).—Alabama's big red regiment leaves Tuscaloosa for Pasadena next Tuesday, pledged to carry on a victory torch passed down by four elevens undefeated in Rose Bowl football.

Set aflame by the 1925 Alabama team with a 20-19 victory over Washington, the torch flickered in 1927 in a 7-7 tie with Stanford, but blazed brightly when teams of 1934 smashed Washington State, 34-0, and Stanford, 29-13.

Victory over California New Year's Day would heighten the aura of tradition begun years ago by Pooley Hubert, Bill Buckler and other Alabama gridiron greats

Possibility of a trip to Pasadena has been a conversational subject among crimson tidemen throughout the 1937 season.

The players and Coach Frank Thomas realize offensive bombers like Dixie Howell and Don Hutson are lacking and the manpower of Freddie Sington and Foots Clement is gone. They know the tide's chances for victory may rest on the sniper's toe of Sanford or Kilgrow.

California will see only eleven redshirted southern boys trot onto Rose Bowl Field New Year's Day, but a host of other redshirts—Nebulous, perhaps—will be with them. Johnny Mack Brown will be there, and John Cain, and Ears Whitworth, along with other men who fought for the "Big Red" in the past.

iants Won't Raise Offer Made for Van Lingle Mungo

By GAYLE TALBOT

ew York, Dec. 17 (AP).—The nts, says President Horace neham with finality, have de their last and best offer fc Lingle Mungo, the Brooklyn her, and they are worried to th.

Stoneham, who is young as sidents go and full of enthusiasm, didn't say he was worried. He only said he had made Brooklyns his Sunday offer, that they could take it or ve it alone. But he's worried, the same.

I thought Brooklyn was crazy en it didn't accept our offer Mungo," said Stoneham. "But en I learned what Chicago had red them, I thought they were e as crazy for not accepting getting it down in writing. ck."

Mungo, one of the very best t-handed pitchers in the gue, has proved himself under ficulties, which is to say while ring the Brooklyn livery. But n Lingle has sworn not to pitch other lick for Brooklyn. He n't, either.

Every other club in the National League would give its right m for the South Carolina fireer, but only the Giants and Cubs were sufficiently heeled cash and players to go after him in earnest at the recent meeting in Chicago.

Big Offer

The Giants are known to have offered Pitcher Hal Schumacher, Catcher Gus Mancuso and Outfielder Hank Lieber and a chunk of cash estimated at $75,000 for him. If, as Stoneham reveals, the Cubs went higher than that, then they really laid something on the line. But the Brooklyns turned both of them down, and still are sulking.

"What Brooklyn wants, of course, is the Cubs' outfielder, "Frank Demaree," said Stoneham. "The Cubs want to pay a lot of money for Mungo and to keep Demaree. They know that Brooklyn needs the money. But I say that Brooklyn would be crazy to settle for the money. I'm offering them players—good ones that will win ball games for them—and that's what they need more than money. Taking money for immediate needs is only staving off the inevitable in baseball."

And there you have the reason for Stoneham's worry. He knows that the Cubs, with both Mungo and the slugging Demaree, would be in position to give the Giants a dangerous run for the flag next season. He's sitting tight and hoping Brooklyn will turn down the coarse money being flaunted by the Chicagoans.

lintons and St. Mary's Tied For Lead in Church League

The Clinton Avenue Aces and St. Mary's are tied for first place in the Church Basketball League in the closest race in many seasons. Trailing these clubs by one full game are the Port Ewen and Comforter fives. Competition this year has proven to be close from the start with exceptionally fine basketball resulting.

The Clintons and Irish clash next Monday night on the Y. M. C. A. court in what may be the deciding game of the first half race. Only two games remain in the first half for each club after Monday's contest. The Clinton Avenue cagers should they win over the Irish, have the most difficult schedule, having to hurdle the Redeemers and Comforters. If St. Mary's turn back the uptown church five, they need to win over the last place First Dutch and the Redeemers to clinch the first half race.

The Irish have a fine array of talent on their roster and have turned in several fine performances. The Clintons, defending champions, have not played the brand of ball that gave them the championship last year, but seem due to turn in a good performance. Two other contests will feature Monday night's program.

Flaherty Is Redskins' Real Medicine Man

By DILLON GRAHAM
AP Feature Service Writer

Washington—This isn't heresy, for we echo every adjective uttered about Sammy Baugh and Cliff Battles, but the boys are puppets.

Highly talented marionettes are they, juggled on a string by a chap as freckled-faced as Tom Sawyer.

No matter how powerful a machine may be, someone has to wind it up, set its direction and touch it off. And 33-year-old Ray Flaherty, the coach, built and engineered the triumphant Washington Redskin professional gridiron thunderbolt.

RAY FLAHERTY
He Pulls The Strings

This modest, lanky redhead took an exceptional college passer and transformed him into a devastating runner, a sure blocker and a sharpshooter who could pitch as accurately on the dead run as from a flat-footed stance. He teamed him with a graceful speedster, who had power along with elusiveness, and produced the hottest outfit football saw in 1937.

It was Flaherty who made this Washington team, a mediocre club a month ago, the terror of the gridiron, one that hurdled three of pro football's strongest clubs—the Green Bay Packers, the New York Giants, and the Chicago Bears—to win the world championship.

Sammy Baugh was a headline name, one to attract the crowds, but after a few superlative performances, professional rivals found Baugh was just a passer. So they'd drift back to batter his bombs, instead of charging. Without Baugh's passing as a threat, Cliff Battles was valueless as a runner.

Flaherty taught Baugh to block and tackle and run. He was an adept pupil and, almost overnight, the Redskins became formidable. Flaherty devised a single wingback formation, which permitted Battles to run, and called for Baugh to lug the ball. He changed Baugh's passing technique. Out of the short punt formation. Baugh had always thrown the ball from a flat-footed position. Baugh learned to fade and fake and throw on the run.

So while conceding the greatness of Baugh and Battles, we rise to doff our chapeau to Flaherty.

He won the eastern championship in his first year as a coach and took the "World Series" his second. You'll recall it was Flaherty who outsmarted the Bears a few years ago and brought the Giants the championship by raiding a lockerroom for basketball shoes that enabled the Giants to keep their footing while the Bears were skidding on an ice-covered field.

Birdseye View Of Sports Events

New York, Dec. 17 (AP).—No fooling about those offers to Bernie Bierman. . . . Sewanee is said to have started the bidding with $12,000 and a big western school will start pitching as soon as it gets the go-ahead signal. . . . Rumored shake-up by the Farmer-Labor controlled U. of Minnesota board of regents may make Bernie a hot prospect. . . . Jimmy Hamilton will not leave Nashville to become general manager of the Brooklyn Dodgers and that's definite.

George Pipgras, the old Yankee pitcher, who did a good job of umpiring in the New York-Penn League (now the Eastern) last season, is in line for a major league tryout. . . . Giants quit bidding for Mungo when Chicago topped their offer of players and $75,000 cash. . . . Cubs believed to have bid $100,000 plus talent. . . . Harry Thomas bought his dad a new auto with part of the Schmeling fight check and is driving it out to Eagle Bend, Minn. . . . If reports that the Giants and Cardinals are cooking up a big trade are on the level, you can bet your last buck Joe Medwick isn't involved. . . . Washington sports writers want the National Professional Football League to settle the championship on a best two-out-of-three game basis and call it the "Dollar Bowl." . . . Young Bob Feller must have plenty on the apple at that. . . . Twice last season he fanned 12 batters and both times his victims were the Yankees. . . . St. Paul reports John Henry Lewis will defend his light-heavyweight title against Fred Lenhart there in January.

Notre Dame will have its own cheering section when it plays Southern California in Los Angeles next year. . . . 200 Irish fans joined a savings club to finance the trip. . . . Kirby Higbe, Moline twirler, pitched to ten Decature batters in one inning last season and only once was the ball touched by a bat, a foul tip. Kirby walked six and fanned four, one of the strike-out victims reaching first when the catcher let the ball get away from him. . . . Page Mr. Ripley.

J. Curtis Sanford, president of the Dallas Cotton Bowl, was almost stymied by this one. . . . A lady phoned and said; "I must have better tickets than those I got on the 10-yard line. . . . My boy is going with a girl and is trying to argue her into marrying him. . . . He believes a couple on the 50-yard line will turn the tide in his favor!" . . . Mosconi Outpoints Planthaber At Kaslich Parlor by 125 to 78

William Mosconi

Playing before a crowd at the Kaslich Billiard Parlor last evening, Wee Willie Mosconi, the Speed Demon of pocket billiards, defeated Freddie Planthaber, local cue artist, 125 to 78. Throughout the match, Mosconi, having quite some difficulty with his position play and running into some tough "leaves", was unable to get better runs than two of 16. However, needing but 13 balls to win the game, he finally began to "click" and put together a string of 47.

Planthaber shot a steady game and managed to garner a run of 23 early in the match, but failed to capitalize to any great extent on the chances given to him during the rest of the game.

Following the match, Mosconi demonstrated a wide variety of difficult tricks and fancy shots, among them, some of his own originality. Mosconi is one of several top notch billiard stars to appear at the Kaslich Parlor in connection with the National Billiard Program.

Greenleaf Still In Billiard Lead

New York, Dec. 7 (AP)—Ralph Greenleaf, the veteran holder of the world's pocket billiards championship, is apparently determined to give young Irving Crane of Rochester, another lesson in how to play "pool" when the chips are down.

Today, as they met in the fourth block of their 1,500 point challenge match Greenleaf held a lead of 382 to 123 after taking both blocks last night. Both players played poorly in the afternoon session, which Greenleaf won 133 to 106 in 28 innings, but the champion was in form in the night session.

He won the frame 124 to 16 in but three innings, scoring a high run of 83 in his second turn at the table.

Meehan Out of Football to Stay

New York, Dec. 17 (AP)—John Francis Meehan is out of football coaching to stay, and John Francis Meehan is content.

Popular, dapper little chief, who ended a career that began at Syracuse in 1919 when he withdrew from his Manhattan College post this week, admitted as much today. He looked out upon 42nd street from the office of his commission company, and 42nd street and the rest of the world looked fine.

"I don't care what sort of an offer I might get, and what the job might or might not be—I wouldn't be interested", he said.

He likes this new life too well. Now that he has decided to devote all his time to his business, he isn't kept awake nights by worries over finding replacements for graduating seniors, or by trying to figure out what backfield combination will work best.

The Year In Sports: 1

Fistiana Crowns Four Kings

By EDDIE BRIETZ

New York (AP)—The year just closing saw the crowning of four new ring champions.

The brown-bombing Joe Louis of Detroit came back from his smashing defeat by Max Schmeling the previous year to lift the heavyweight crown from the veteran James J. Braddock.

Henry Armstrong, the sensational negro from Los Angeles, beat Petey Sarron of Birmingham for the featherweight title. Harry Jeffra of Baltimore took the bantamweight diadem away from Sixto Escobar. Benny Lynch of Scotland won the flyweight crown from Small Montana.

There was considerable more activity in the ring than in 1936 and financially the year showed a gain over 1936 with a total of more than $5,000,000 as the intake and a 20 per cent increase in the number of shows staged. This also was true in Europe despite the Spanish conflict and the war scare in other countries.

Farr Is 'England's Louis'

In England the added activity was largely due to the rise of the Welshman, Tommy Farr, whose leap into the fistic spotlight did for the British Empire what Joe Louis' feats accomplished in the United States in 1936.

The revival of interest in this country is attributed to the sudden decision of most topnotch fighters that more money is to be made by fighting regularly than by sitting on the sidelines waiting for one big outdoor shot.

Armstrong is the year's outstanding fighter. His record of 25 knockouts in 26 fights against the cream of the lightweights and featherweights is comparable to the best in the last quarter century.

Other 1936 high spots were:

The knockout of Braddock by Louis and Joe's defense of his title against Tommy Farr within two months' time.

The return of the British Empire to a commanding position in world fisticuffs.

The remarkable comeback of Kid Chocolate, former featherweight champion, who in 22 fights came through with a clean slate—21 victories and one draw.

The rout of Bob Pastor by Nathan Mann.

The collapse of Pedro Montanez, sensational Puerto Rican, in his lightweight title fight with Lou Ambers.

The rise of Alberto Lovell and Jimmy Adamick of Detroit as title threats.

From an international point of view, the biggest boxing news item was the shelving of Max Schmeling by Jimmy Braddock and the champ's acceptance of Joe Louis as a substitute in a title contest.

Good Prospects Appear

Of the talent developed in 1937, the best prospects for the coming year are Heavyweights, Alberto Lovell, Argentine; Nathan Mann, New Haven, Conn.; and Jimmy Adamick, Detroit.

Light heavyweights, Ralph De John Buffalo, and George Black, Milwaukee.

Middleweights: Glenn Lee, Edison, N. J.; Billy Conn, Pittsburgh, and Al Hostak, Seattle.

Welterweights: Milt Aron, Chicago, and Ernie Roderick, Liverpool.

Lightweights: Billy Beauhuld, New Jersey, and Johnny Bellus, New Haven, Conn.

Featherweights: Pete Scala, New York, and Lou Gevinson, Washington.

Bantamweights: Baby Yack, Toronto, and George Pace, Cleveland.

Flyweights: Jackie Jurich, San Jose, Calif., and Ernie Weiss, Austria.

Severino, Sgt. Perry And Vic Ridrigo Are Paired With N.Y. Aces

LOTS OF ACTION

All Hard Punchers Billed to Contest in Tonight's Bouts—Tantillo on with Cliff Leger.

Tonight the last boxing show until after Christmas will be presented in the Municipal Auditorium, offering a card of scraps that promises plenty of action.

Three Diamond Belt Champions, Sergeant Perry of West Point, Mario Severino of Schenectady and Vic Rodrigo of Amsterdam are on the bill which has a special appeal to the fight fraternity and is expected to jam the house.

All of the boys slated for tonight are action fighters, sluggers who bore in from gong to gong and give the customers their money's worth in firy fisticuffing.

There are seven bouts listed, six five rounders, and one three, making a total of 33 rounds as a special holiday attraction.

George Gainford, New York Golden Glove trainer, this morning wired that all of his boxers are ready—Manuel Roosa, Packey Barrett, Bobby Means, Jimmy West and Jimmy Day. These boys have good reputations which means that the Diamond Belters and the other upstate scrappers must be at their best to make an impresston tonight.

Sergeant Perry arrived in Kingston Thursday to rest properly for his match with Jimmy Day, one of the top bouts on the card. The Diamond Belt winner hopes to put one over on the New Yorker before beginning a two months' furlough at his home in Philadelphia.

Buddy Benoit, although not a Belt winner, made a great showing at the tourney in Albany by flooring the durable Joe Triola, and should give the Kingston fans a treat tonight when he starts slugging it out with Manuel Roosa.

Mario Severino, who refused to box last week in order to enjoy the advantages of a layoff before coming here against Bobby Means is out to win tonight. Severino is being pressed for a match by Irv Van Kleeck, Kingston's junior lightweight, who almost defeated him in the Diamond tournament, and after that boxed an exhibition draw with him.

Joe Tantillo, Highland Hurricane, who says he's in the best shape of his career is down for five rounds with Cliff Leger, Mohawk Indian, who throws more punches than any 126 pounder in the Adirondack A. A. U. This scrap should produce as much action, if not more than any on the card, as both boys are hustlers in the ring.

The one three rounder, bringing together Charlie Raigins, Saugerties lightweight, and Sammy Carle, Albany novice, is anxiously awaited by the patrons who want to see Raigins in another of the slashing exhibitions he put up several weeks ago, his first time in the ring.

The entire card:

Five Rounders

Sergeant Perry, West Point vs. Jimmy Day, New York.

Mario Severino, Schenectady vs. Bobby Means, New York.

Vic Rodrigo, Amsterdam vs. Packey Barrett, New York.

Buddy Benoit, Amsterdam vs. Manuel Roosa, New York.

George Spidaro, Albany vs. Jimmy West, New York.

Cliff Leger, Scotia vs. Joe Tantillo, Highland.

Three Rounds

Charley Raigins, Saugerties vs. Sammy Carle, Albany.

Yule-Logs, Candles Symbolize "Y" Party

The members of the Married Women's Club of the Y. W. C. A. enjoyed a delightful afternoon on Thursday. The "Y," in candlelight, with its fireplace and huge Christmas tree filled everyone with the holiday spirit and formed an intimate setting for the program under the direction of Mrs. Clarence L. Dumm.

The program opened with two Christmas carols from France, "Lere's a Torch, Jeanette Isabella" and "Sing Noel," sung by a trio consisting of Mrs. Clarence Wolfersteig, Mrs. Mortimer B. Downer and Mrs. Lloyd LeFever, accompanied by Mrs. Walter T. Tremper. This was followed by a dance solo, "Waltz Regir," by Miss Mabel Brewer, accompanied by Miss Ottilio Riccobono. The first group on the program closed with two monologues by Mrs. Adam Thiel, "Dorothy's Christmas Shopping" and "Dad's Christmas" and a piano solo, "Second Arabesque" by Debussy, played by Miss Elizabeth Rowland.

The club members then joined in singing the familiar traditional carols of the Yuletide season. The last half of the program consisted of a reading, "The Bird's Christmas Carol," given by Miss Minerva Schwartz, and a soprano solo, "The Christ Child," sung by Mrs. Wolfersteig, who was accompanied by the composer of the words and music, Mrs. Tremper. The Yule-Log Ceremony, conducted by Mrs. Dumm, completed the program. Mrs. Dumm read the history of the yule-log, its origin and significance. Each member was given a small yule-log with a candle burning in it, with the wish that it would bring them all good health and good fortune.

Represent YMCA State Conference

On Tuesday the New York State Directors and Committeemen's Conference of the Y.M.C.A. Mid-Hudson and Westchester District was held at the Y.M.C.A. at New Rochelle. A large assemblage of directors and committeemen met to discuss the future of the Y. M. C. A. in relation to its value to the various committees represented.

Three group sessions took place under the guidance of men well versed in the problems presented by each group. The first session discussed the need for local Association to adopt written personnel policies. Chairman Thomas M. Logan of Yonkers, presented L. J. Tompkins, Personnel Secretary of the National Council of the Y. M. C. A. who masterfully aided the group in its discussion of the subject.

Another group made the acquaintance of Rome A. Betts, president of the New York State Committee, who was introduced by Frank H. Nye, of White Plains. Mr Betts' discourse, entitled "Group Work Standards of the Y. M. C. A." was related to Boys' Work and was very well received by the men interested in this phase of Y. M. C. A. work.

A group mainly interested in the Physical and Health educational work of Y. M. C. A.'s, learned a great deal about the trends in Y. M. C. A. programs of Physical Education as presented by Arthur Dome of the West Side Y. M. C. A. It was pointed out that with a changing environment the program must become formal and more recreational to meet the demands of the individual. In the past the Y. M. C. A. was pioneer in mass and group activities. Now with more leisure time on hand, the average individual can devote more time to recreational activities. This brings about the need for a greater variety of diversions which in turn necessitates the spreading out of the physical department's facilities.

During the group discussion much interest was shown in the project of using these facilities on the Sabbath. Most of the men felt that it would not be sacrilligious to open up such facilities to the members.

Several expressed their confidence that this would soon take place, pointing out that people generally are now using Sunday afternoons and evenings for recreational activities.

Another topic which stirred up some interest was the growing demand for mixed activities. Most Y. M. C. A's. have recognized the need for recreational activities which are both socially and physically beneficial and have opened up their gymnasiums, swimming pools and social rooms for such groups.

At 7 p. m., dinner was served. Various selections were presented by the University Glee Club of New Rochelle under the direction of Song Leader, Bernard B. Nye.

Chairman, Judge Peter Cantline of Newburgh, presented the following speakers:

J. E. Sproul, Program Executive, National Board of Y. M. C. A.

Dr. James Lee Ellenwood, N. Y. State Y. M. C. A. Secretary. Mr. Sproul's address, "The Y. M. C. A. and Youth Today", gave an intelligent and inspiring insight into the problems facing the youth of today and what he considered the proper approach of the Y. M. C. A. in aiding the youth in solving these problems.

Dr. Ellenwood followed, speaking much along the same line, citing interesting everyday experiences, and appealing to the men present to make their Y. M. C. A. the means of reaching the individual and aiding him in facing life's problems.

Local directors and committee men of the Kingston Y. M. C. A. who attended the conference were Emil Boessneck, director; Everett Schutt, camp committeeman; H. L. Winter, physical department committee and Charles Henke, physical director.

CONQUER YOUR SELF-CONSCIOUSNESS' BRING OUT YOUR BURIED CHARMS

Self-Consciousness a Wet Blanket

Have you ever spent an evening in the shadow of a charming woman—convinced she has a magic formula straight from some fairy godmother.

And all the time you had as much charm and more—locked up within you. You have only to conquer that vicious parasite—your miserable self-consciousness—and your charm can burst happily into bloom.

Self consciousness, the psychologists say, could turn a Cleopatra into a wallflower. Ever at your elbow, it whispers, "You have a sallow skin, you're no good at wise cracks, you have no style. Of course he won't like you."

So you retreat into a frosty reserve and let Diana, who has none of these defects, charm Paul into complete adoration.

Turn around and tell your self-consciousness a thing or two: "But I have a delightful smile, what I do say is tactful and good-humored, and my grooming is good and is going to be better!"

Magically self-confidence floods your whole being. Freed of your what's-the-use complex you try a smart new hair cut, an enchanting new perfume, a sprightly new line of talk—and find that you, too, are new, radiant, charming.

Will your grumbling self-consciousness creep back, "But you do have that sallow skin"? Laugh him away, "Look at Myrna Loy's freckles. They don't stop her, do they? Besides, I've found that orange reds and yellow greens give a lovely glow to a sallow skin like mine."

Our 40-page booklet, SECRETS OF A WINNING PERSONALITY, helps you to discover yourself, to overcome defects, and aids you to develop the many little assets of manner, grooming, conversation and disposition that are the sum total of that magical, happy quality—charm.

Send 15c for our booklet, SECRETS OF A WINNING PERSONALITY, to Kingston Daily Freeman, Home Institute, 109 West 19th street, New York, N. Y. Write plainly your name, address and the name of booklet.

Nation's News In Brief

peared Monday, the day Mrs Carpenter was killed.

Two Shot to Death.

Quitman, Ga., Dec. 17 (AP)—Lee W. Branch, former president of the Georgia Bar Association, and one of the state's outstanding attorneys, and his wife were shot to death in their home today.

Patrolmamn Grady Marable said the two were killed by Livingston Snow, Mrs. Branch's brother. Marable said he was called to the home by neighbors and captured Snow in the dining room after a brief struggle.

"Livingston Snow was raving," the policeman said. "I understand he was mentally ill and that plans were being made to take him to an institution."

"Beano" Breen Killed.

Boston, Dec. 17 (AP)—The blazing pistol of an assassin today brought death to David J. "Beano" Breen, 41, notorious Boston sporting world figure, in what Police Commissioner Joseph F. Timilty described as the possible outbreak of warfare in the "labor field."

Breen, whose career had included the operation of a liquor selling night club in the prohibition era, participation in gambling rackets and management of boxers, recently turned to furnishing "strike breakers," police said, in labor disputes.
